This year's Senior class float was a giant red morter board. Seniors announced the float with the signs shown to the left. Class pride showed on everyone's face.

Spirited Seniors Lead The Way

Senior year was the greatest. The class of 1983 proved that they were the most enthusiastic. Homecoming Week was a time when the Senior Spirit was most evident. Having won the spirit link contest and wearing their class T-shirts, the Seniors showed the underclassmen the true meaning of school spirit. The seniors made Homecoming week unforgettable by parading around the school dressed as they did during the '70's. The mod-look and the Afro gave some seniors a new personality.

Patriotism also provided a theme day and seniors wore red, white, and blue in honor of the 1976 bi-centennial.

It wasn't easy trying to capture the look and feeling of the past decade, but Homecoming Week did. This gave all seniors a chance to show their pride. The spirit they gave off was contagious to faculty and underclassmen alike.

During the assembly the band showed their support while they waited their turn to perform.

One picture was worth a thousand words, and the scoreboard at the end of the Manor-Great Bridge football game made one great picture.

The Mustangs were in great form as they won this opening game of the season. Team moral and pride returned and school spirit was obvious once again.

The Long Awaited Victory . . .

The first football game of the season was a highlight of the fall. The enthusiasm that this victory provided gave the student body a feeling of pride and respect for their football team.

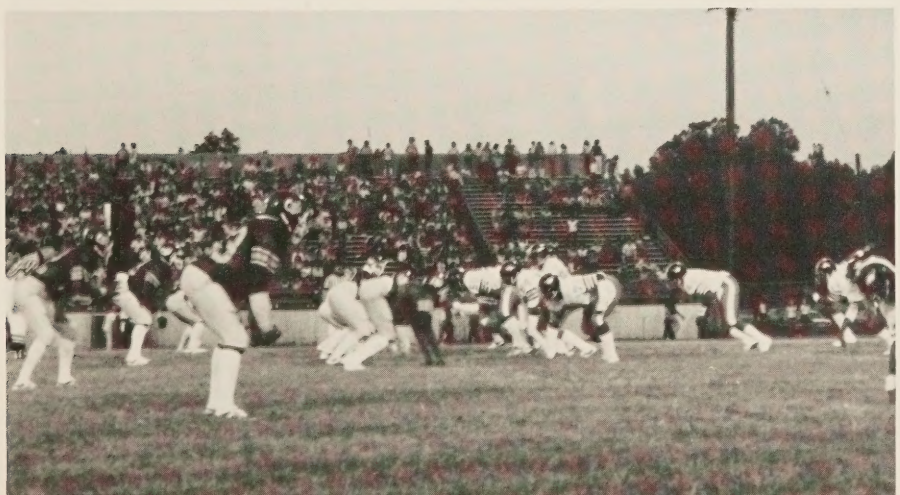
The crowd was quite surprised as the Mustangs proved to be a worthy opponent for the Wildcats. The hard work, time, and effort of summer practice had paid off. The enthusiasm of a new coach was also not to be overlooked.

When a victory had become apparent, the cheerleaders and fans began to yell, "Hey! Hey! You! You! Look at the scoreboard!" The countdown began, and when the clock stopped, the fans poured onto the field to join the players in celebrating.

Field action often caused the coaches and the team to leave the bench.

Anxiety and nervousness were present as the team and the new coach headed for the field for the first time.

Tailback Huron Winstead, carrying the ball for the Mustangs, broke for a touchdown against Norcom during the Homecoming game.



To mount an offensive drive, the team squared off against the Wildcats.

Before any performance, the band members faced inspection. Standing at parade rest, the Marching Mustangs showed uniform perfection.

Precision Produces Perfection

Marching Mustangs Outclass All Rivals

Each member of the band must be checked out before he or she marches. Orelius Wright lent a helping hand to Janet Millner.

Jewell Vinson found it necessary to trim her tassels as one of the last minute preparations before the band left the school.

These Are The Good Times

Ivory Scales and Clayton Johnson enjoyed a conversation during a break in the music. It was usually difficult to hear when the disc jockey was playing records.

Cedric Reid "dropped the bomb" at the prom while dancing with his date Sandie Davis. One saw many unique styles and steps on the dance floor. It made the prom entertaining as well as fun.

Many couples enjoyed taking a break from the dancing. Tommy Mauk, Sandi Cox, Amand Mines, and Terri Pfeiffer sat this one out.

The school was a special place that offered activities that went well beyond academics.

The trends of the day as well as the problems and emotions of the teen years were all evident at school. Special people, special activities, and special feelings helped to make the high school years better and more memorable than any others.

Pride in oneself and pride in one's school were developed and grew as one became more active and more aware of what was going on in Mustang Territory.

MUSTANG TERRITORY

Carrying the banner for the Art Club were Stephanie Fly, Carlton Boone, and Krista Megill. The talented membes of the group once again captured first place.

Homecoming 1982

Homecoming 1982 was the tenth such celebration. The traditional bonfire was held the evening before the Homecoming Assembly. Friday brought many exciting events. Seniors wore their new T-shirts for the first time. Several past Kings and Queens returned for the assembly. The band and the cheerleaders roused school spirit, and the student body anxiously awaited the 2:00 bell in order to leave and prepare for the big event.

The parade began at 7:00 pm and went around the track at Churchland Stadium. A variety of floats helped to carry out this year's theme — "Manor High School: A Decade of Memories." The band lent the final touch to a very exciting display.

Members of the 1982 Homecoming Court were: Adriane Rawls and Darryl Williams, Freshmen Attendants; Vonda Thomas and Yvonn Hardy, Junior Attendants; Phyllis Jennings, Ricardo Randall, Roxanne Long and Bobby Corbett, Senior candidates for King and Queen; Dana Brown and Kenneth Jones 1982 Homecoming Queen and King; Ivory Scales and Harry Jenkins, Senior Attendants; Arsenia Walker, Sophomore Attendant; and Reginald Cuffee, her escort.

Michael Gray (42) paved the way for Darius Prayer (44) as Larry Parker (71) came in to aid the defense.

Under the direction and supervision of Mr. Richard Cash, Student Government Advisor, this year's Homecoming was a very successful and entertaining experience.

A New Beginning . . .

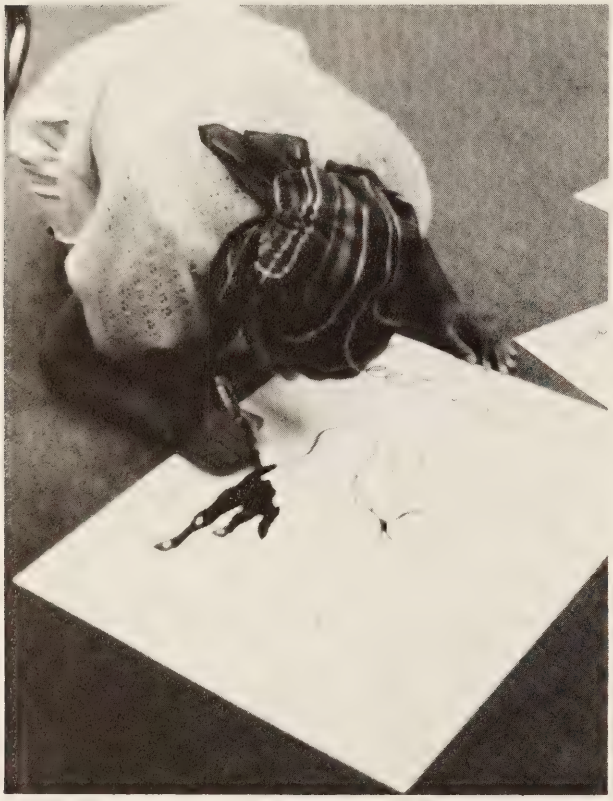
When new students enter Manor High, little do they know what goes on behind its doors. SGA executive board members, under the supervision of their sponsor, Mr. Richard Cash, organized Orientation. Other students, who were already familiar with the school and the way it operated, came out during the summer and helped by serving as guides.

During orientation, students were introduced to administrators and teachers. The students were also taken on a guided tour of the school so that they would not feel lost on their first day of school.

Planning an orientation and trying to remember all the important items kept Angela Mayo, Deirdre Hinton, Tamara Lumpkin, Mark Whitaker, and Stephanie Harmon busy during August.

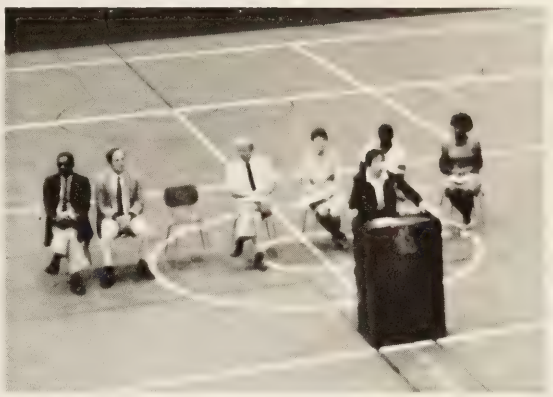


A Mustang's sense of spirit began with his first visit to the school. Lisa Belton prepared a welcome for new students.

Newcomers waited in the gym for the program to begin.

Calvin Watts, Romy Scott, and Crystal Johnson sold penants and Mustang power towels, symbols of school spirit.

Orientation Officially Begins The School Year



Mrs. Hinton gave a welcome speech and introduced members of the faculty to the new students. During her speech, she gave some encouraging words and shared with all her strong pride and sense of school spirit.

Before their tour of the school, students had to be assigned to different tour groups.

Guiding the newcomers, and showing them areas such as the cafeteria, were Angela Albergottie and Rodney Price. Despite the efforts of the guides many newcomers got lost anyway!

Back Them Up

With Spirit

This first place float built by the Art Club was a giant reproduction of a class ring. Once again the Art Department combined color and lights to create a most impressive float.

"1, 2, 3, 4, 5 Mustangs don't take no jive — Whoo! Whoo! We got the spirit — 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 Mustangs gonna do it again — Whoo! Whoo! Come on let's hear it — !" This cheer expressed the feeling of the students of this past year. The students and faculty have started a brand new decade and the spirit they generated showed that they were prepared to make the second decade more spirited. The next ten years can safely be dubbed as the "Spirit Years"

The Homecoming float by the Drama Club with Terri Pfeiffer, Amand Mines, and Scott Spradlin created images of Fantasy Island, a hit show of the past decade.

The Industrial Arts Clubs lunar land rover roamed the track, giving everyone the impression of a lunar mission.

Floats Highlight Halftime

Yelling cheers, the enthusiastic JV cheerleaders circled the track in their spirit truck.

The Gift Of Life

It only hurts for a little while Mr. Mitchell!

Some students went to great lengths to avoid finding themselves "stuck" on Blood Drive Day. However, most just gritted their teeth and rolled up their sleeves in true Mustang spirit. Due to an increased need for blood in the community, Manor held both a fall and spring blood drive this year.

When the final count was in, nearly one-hundred students gave blood, with no fatalities reported.

The Symbol Of Class

Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors all have one thing in common, they are not FRESHMEN! However, one of the most important things was the ordering and receiving of the class ring. The excitement was extremely high when the students received their rings and began to compare the stones as well as the sides. Even though the students may have compared and commented on their rings, they still were proud to own a class ring because it marked a new milestone in their education.

Cash in hand, Cynthia Graddy prepared to make her ring order final.

Prom Decorating Exhausting Fun

Left: Gregg Hutton filled the pool while Noreen Edney kept a watch to see that the water didn't overflow. Above: Mark Whitaker, Sonja Bruce, Noreen Edney, and Tamara Lumpkin fastened the crepe paper near the entrance to the square.

Left: Lisa Thompson, Maria Moore, and Terry Brown assisted with decorating the tables. It took many volunteers to complete the transformation of the square into the "Island of Desire", the theme of the 1982 Prom. Above: Junior Class Sponsor, Mrs. Evalene Hargrove, sat exhausted from the hours of fundraising and planning which took up many hours after school. Decorating for the prom was almost the easy part of her job.

A Time To Review, A Time To Learn

Studying:

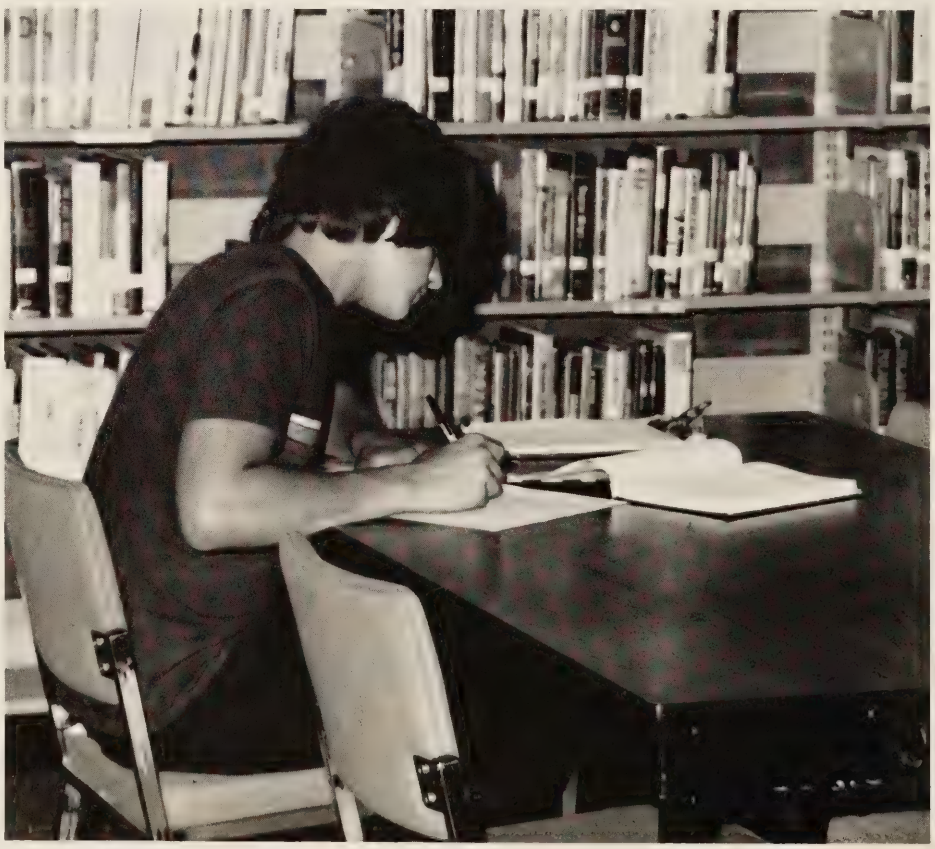
Some people preferred absolute quiet. Others could only "concentrate" to the TV or radio. Whatever environment one chose, everyone had to study in order to pass.

For some, studying was a cram session during homeroom. For others, lunch time provided the minutes needed to instantly memorize two weeks of notes.

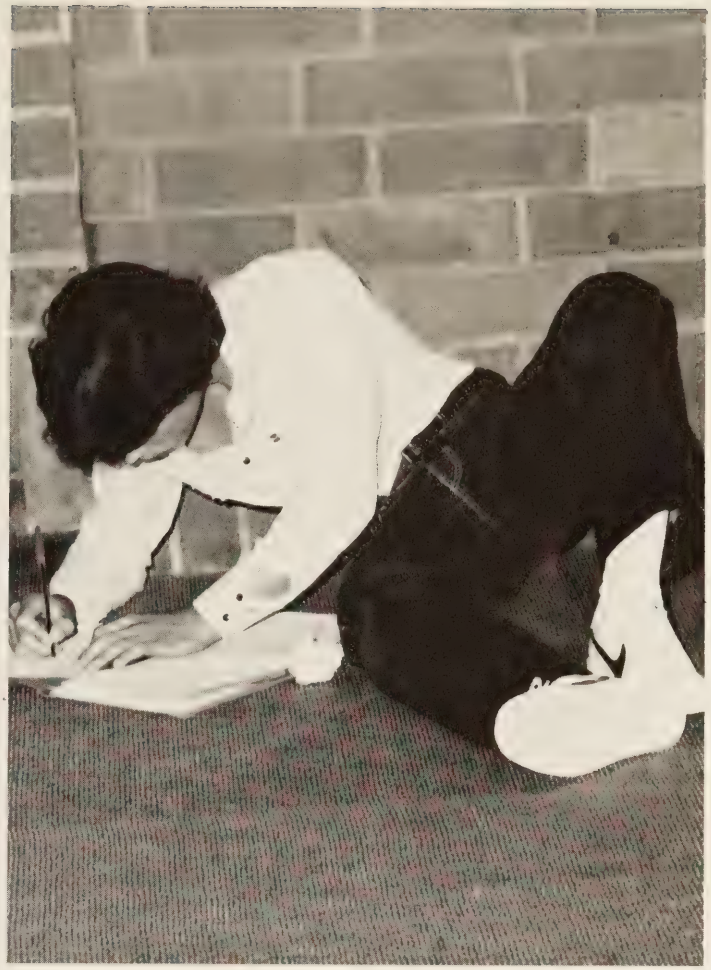
The frantic freshmen who nightly carried the entire contents of their lockers home in order to be prepared, contrasted with some sophisticated seniors who seldom removed a book from school.

The library provided a sanctuary from the annoying disturbances in the hall. Juniors became very familiar with its contents as they prepared their first term papers.

Favorite study spots at school included the steps on the square, the floorspace between the lockers, the area near the doors of the Little Theater, and, of course, the classroom.



The quiet of the library made it one of the best places in the school for concentrated study. Tony Smith took advantage of the solitude to complete his homework.



A carpeted school was a luxury we took for granted. John Martir found it a comfortable place where he could complete that assignment.

Classwork was important to the learning process. Many assignments were completed at school leaving students free to pursue other interests after the two o'clock bell.

I've Got The Munchies!!

Above: There was a whole new life after school was out and it centered around food! For some, "Coke was It!" Christie Holland, Lisa Parker, and Leslie Everette shared this idea.

Many students had hunger attacks during class. First period came and it was time for the first snack of the day. Food entered the classroom in many disguises. A large totebag or a plain paper bag was often used to carry in the treat.

Teachers were generally uncooperative, leaving students unable to pop something into their mouths or even to finish chewing that "stolen" bite. Lunch time seemed hours away, and there was little opportunity to satisfy one's appetite before it arrived.

When a teacher left the classroom, a student often got that necessary break, and much food could be consumed during such an absence.

The post school munchies were satisfied with many different foods. Mark O'Connor, Tommy Stice, and Robert Clifton paused to demolish their food in the cafeteria.

Good times and good food made the scene after classes. Leslie Everette greeted his friends before putting his money into the machine.

Above: Chris Rupe sought advice on making a selection from the snack machine. "When you're hungry, it all looks good!"
Below: The selection was finally made and the machine actually sent forth Chris' selection. Once again the munchies were satisfied.

A random survey turned up the following foods as favorite ones on which to "pig out."
Derek Cary ... French fries with mustard, ketchup, and just a tad of vinegar.
Janet Millner ... On a roll ... eating a Big Wheel.
Pam Reynolds ... loves Doritoes.
Debbie Ricketts ... cupcakes ... the yellow kind.
Amy Mann ... fish sticks with ketchup.
Darryl Johnson ... pizza ... any kind.
Angela Williams ... popcorn, pizza, and french fries.
Tamara Lumpkin ... french fries and chocolate ... not together.
Dwanda Tisdom ... Twinkies
Mike Davis ... "I munch out on it all!"
Juanita Williams ... tacos

Working Out — No Thrills In Drills

As soon as the bell rang, many students changed clothes and began their daily routine of after school practice. These practices were designed to get athletes in shape and also to help them perform to the best of their ability in competition. The exercises were very hard and strenuous, but they could be fun. The best times were often after practice. Getting together with a friend and joking about it was part of the daily routine according to Keith Rogers.

The coach was the "bad" guy. He made the guys work hard and he drove them to achieve. Drilling and exercising required discipline and determination on the part of each team member and the coach was the man who didn't let the players forget this.

Robert Clifton and Rhoda Johnson jogged around the inside of school in order to build endurance for indoor track.

One way of maneuvering on a basketball court was by dribbling. Coach Black watched carefully as the players went through a drill.

Above: The coaches worked just as hard as the players. They had to keep the equipment in working order. Above Coach Crute worked on the starting gun for the track team. Below: Working out in basketball practice Frank Rodgers took a jump shot.

Top: Members of the girls track team loosened up before practice to avoid pulling muscles. Above: Long hours of hard work in basketball practice gave players confidence when they took on opponents.

Practices could get very difficult, and every now and then you would have a chance to go up against a friend. Above: Mark Whitaker and Ken Jones did some battling.

One of the least popular exercises in basketball practice was the laps around the basketball court. But this time was also most needed because the laps gave the players the stamina to run up and down the court during the games.

Students Aid Local Families

Giving has always been an important part of the Holiday Season. The SGA sponsored a Thanksgiving canned food drive in order to aid needy families. Interclass rivalry led to two homerooms raising a total of 228 cans of food. The spirit of competition combined with a desire to assist those less fortunate made the drive a big success according to SGA President Mark Whitaker.

The spirit of doing for others carried over to the Christmas fund-raising of Operation Santa Claus.

Right: Angie Ruffin, Tamara Lumpkin, Amand Mines, Harry Jenkins, and Janet Millner tallied the number of cans donated during the week before Thanksgiving. Above: Phaedra Jones and Angel Wright assisted with the counting. Right: Seniors Janet Millner and Tamara Lumpkin had a special interest in the total numbers of cans collected. Their homeroom 104 placed second behind Junior homeroom 115.

Christmas Is For Children

Christmas is for Children

The party held on Thursday, December 16th for underprivileged children was sponsored by the SGA. The preparation included fundraising by homerooms in order to buy toys. Seniors in homeroom 104 raised the most money and Juniors in homeroom 115 came in second place.

SGA officers Sonja Bruce, Janet Millner, Ricky Randall, and Sherry Powell went shopping for the Christmas gifts. After several hours of wrapping gifts and planning, the executive board members shared in the happiness of watching the small children tear open the surprise packages and examine their new-found toys.

A car and a small boy added together made happiness at the after school party.

Sonja Bruce talked to the guest about what she wanted for Christmas.

Movie Madness

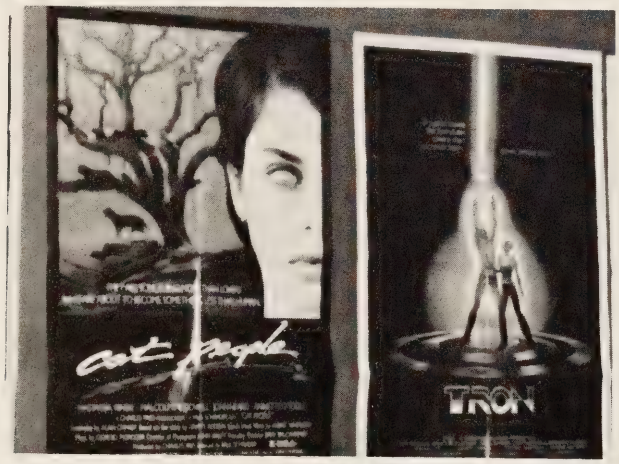
Movies — some were blockbusters, others were flops. The summer of 1982 was a season to remember, and one that would go down in cinema history as the largest, most successful summer ever. This was the summer of comedies, action films, and the return of old favorites. The sequels were in full swing. "Star Trek: The Wrath of Khan", "Road Warrior", "Rocky III", "Friday the 13th Part 3 in 3-D", "Halloween III: The Season of the Witches", and "Poltergeist" were the titles of some of the blockbusters last summer.

Perhaps the most popular film of the year was "E.T. — The Extra-Terrestrial", spawning "E.T. mania". Buttons, T-shirts, Reeses Pieces, posters, and even amateur impressionist clearly showed the wave of affection felt for the little alien.

"E.T. — The Extra-Terrestrial" may have won the hearts of many people, but other movies ranked high, too. Sherry Powell said "I liked "Rocky III", especially Mr. T. because he was big and bad". "Poltergeist" ranked high as well as low with several students. Saundra Davis said, "It was too real". Ivory Scales felt "It was stupid and unreal". Angela Mayo said "I liked the part when the head came out of the closet". The most unusual movie release was "Friday the 13th Part 3 in 3-D". Keith Rogers said "The audience's reaction to 3-D made it more exciting. The summer of 1982 was the true season of movie madness.

Whether it was due to the air condition or actually the films, the summer was dominated by the flicks.

"E.T." managed to phone home and capture the hearts of many movie-goers.



The remake of "Cat People" starring Natasha Kinsky became a minor hit last summer. "TRON" used the idea of video-mania to draw the crowds into the theater, and make it a minor hit.

Dana Brown and Sally O'Brien seemed most interested in the poster of the comedy movie "Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid" starring Steve Martin.

Summer Travels . . . On The Continent

It was expensive to "reach out and touch someone", especially when calling from London. Tina Black (from Norcom), Johanna Thornton, Lisa Belton, and Mrs. Judy Moore, chaperone, examined a British pay phone.

A grand tour of England, France, Switzerland, Italy, Austria, and Germany provided several students with a first-hand opportunity to see many of the towns and works of art which they had studied in their World History class.

The group toured the countries listed in twenty-one days. The pace was a fast one, necessary in order to see as much as possible. Stops included: St. Paul's Cathedral in London; Notre Dame and the Palace of Versailles in Paris; the Forum and the Colosseum in Rome; and the Swiss Alps.

As typical tourists, Mrs. Moore and her group rode in Venetian gondolas, watched the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace, and, of course, rode up the elevator in the Eiffel Tower.

The trip went well, and except for Johanna Thornton's lost passport (which took four hours to replace) and some very hot weather, there were no disasters.

"The trip was a great success, and I would like to do it again," said Mrs. Moore.

Bottom Left: Mrs. Moore and Johanna Thornton rested in Rome. Below: The Arc De Triomph made an impressive shape against a Paris sky. Built in 1806 by Napoleon, it sits today in the middle of a busy traffic circle.

Class rivalry dominated the school year. The Senior class knew that it was the best and proved it by out-yelling the other classes at pep rallies. Mr. LeRoy Williams' Junior homeroom was really "on the ball", and won both the United Way Drive and the Thanksgiving canned food drive. This sparked an intense rivalry with Mrs. Susan Yearby's Senior homeroom.

The freshman and Sophomore classes elected officers and began to develop their own identities under the leadership of class sponsors Mrs. Sheryl Russell and Mrs. Marcella McNeil.

Going For Wings

A first for Manor was made in '83. Angela Crabb, a senior, and third in her class received a Presidential nomination to the United States Air Force Academy.

Angi was always interested in the service, but she also wanted to further her education. This was a difficult decision. Then she had the opportunity to do both. Helped by Mrs. Lamberton, her guidance counselor, and Capt. Stephen Parker, her liason officer, she began working diligently on the application process. Her first step was obtaining a Pre-Candidate questionnaire. She wrote to the USAFA and received a questionnaire. She filled it out and sent it back for review. The board reviewed the questionnaire and determined that she could continue applying.

The next step was a Cadet Fitness Test in Fort Union Virginia. This test consisted of pull-ups, push-ups, situps, and the 300 yard dash. She also had to take a physical examination which consisted of everything from a blood test to an EKG. This lasted 7 hours. These tests qualified her for either a navigator, pilot, or commission, which limits her career choices in the Air Force. Forms and letters were written back and forth. She was also interviewed by representatives from Sen. Warner's office. She was applying for a Congressional nomination, but she received a Presidential nomination. Still she had to wait until April to know whether or not she had been accepted.

Memories

After the first semester all seniors knew it was "diploma time". Class rankings were distributed telling of the seniors final positions, and bringing back the realization that in June the class of 1983 would be assembled in the gym for the last time waiting to march out to "Pomp and Circumstance". Most seniors knew that when they walked out of Manor on graduation night they would be leaving behind four years of memories.

Memories of our freshmen year included getting lost in the halls because there were no plaques saying Hall A Rooms 1-12, going to the first pep rally and not knowing what to do, as well as taking exams that counted a fourth of the semester grade for the first time.

Memories of our sophomore year included being the class in the middle, taking competency test, as well as joining the Nation Honor Society.

Junior memories included attending the prom, receiving class rings and finally receiving the respect we deserve. The lasting memory was waiting for the final year.

Senior memories included selecting and applying to colleges, visiting recruiters, paying class dues, and praying that while marching down the stairs during graduation you would not fall.

The future held many mysteries and more new memories. Seniors moved forward with great expectations, still holding on to the memories.

Goodbye Manor High from the Class of 1983.

Juniors Dominate Challenge Team

The Junior class was well represented on the Tidewater Challenge Team. Three team members and three alternates belonged to the class of '84.

Quick minds, keeping calm under pressure, and the ability to retain information from hours of after school drilling were major characteristics of these students. The team beat Forest Glen in the first round but lost to Hampton Roads Academy in the second round.

The match was over and the score was in: Donald Taylor and Tim Cherry discussed their loss on the second level of Tidewater Challenge.

Team member Shelton Davis and alternate Lori Wilson discussed some of the topics they anticipated might be used on WHRO's Tidewater Challenge.

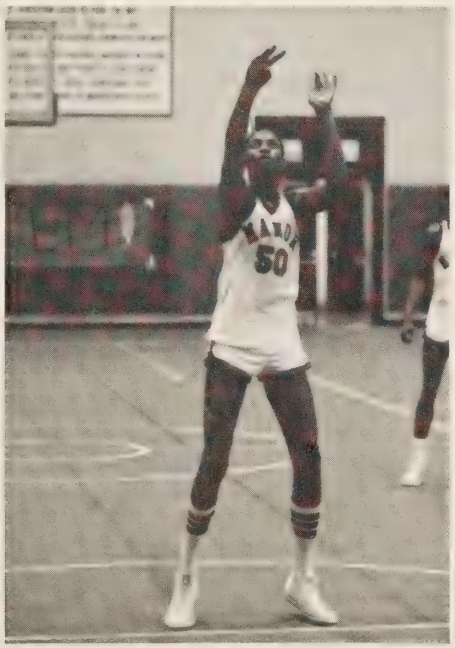
Participation And Involvement: Juniors Who Care

Reginald Cuffee set up a good shooting form before he tried to make the basket.

Sherri Bell helped to pep the Mustangs up for the upcoming football game.



Blackwell found it easy to shoot from the foul line due to his 6'4" height.

Tim Jones relaxed in a state of calmness after football practice.

After Mike Gray came off of the field he patiently awaited the results of the game.

It's 2:00 p.m. . . . Time To Go Home

The buses began lining up around 1:40 p.m. Many students headed toward the bus lot as soon as the bell rang. It was an experienced rider who could beat the crowd and get a good seat.

Leaving school was the highlight of a day for some students. For others it meant heading to work, homework, babysitting, or just relaxing for a few hours. Many students remained at school 'way past the two o'clock hour. These students were involved in the many clubs, activities, or athletic teams available for anyone who wished to give the extra time and effort.

For seniors, the day was coming which would be the last time for them to leave school. There were those who said that they couldn't wait for June and the final day of class. There were also many seniors who felt sad at leaving.

For freshman, sophomore, junior, or senior, the big yellow bus, the family car, or one's own two feet allowed for rapid departure. It was amazing how rapidly the parking lot could clear!

The close of school signaled a time to converse with friends, make plans for the evening, or just let off steam.

The halls filled quickly during class change, and it was often difficult to wind a path to a locker. The close of school resulted in a great commotion. The miracle was how quickly the halls emptied and how quiet the building could become fifteen minutes after the final bell had rung.

Sophomores Get Involved!!!

Sophomores who wanted to get involved in school activities could join any of several groups. Clubs, band, chorus and drama were just a few groups. Some sophomores had negative attitudes toward school activities. They felt that they took too much time. Others said they thought school activities were good and fun to join. Robin Wilson and Robbyn Gunter said they thought school activities helped students both academically and scholastically.

The class of 85 elected class officers for the first time. Mrs. McNeil sponsered this group and spoke very highly of each new officer.

Pennie Turner won the school contest "Voice of Democracy." This years topic was "Youth America's Strength." Denise Williams and Melissa Lindsay received recognition for placing in the top twenty in the city-wide National math contest.

Getting involved and receiving recognition was what the sophomore year was all about as students planned for the future.

Interest Sparks Change

"I was a member of the Marching and Concert band during my freshman year. This was really a lot of fun despite the sometimes difficult music.

Last year, I was a majorette and I really loved twirling my baton. It was challenging to me because I knew that I wanted to perform my best for the band and the audience.

You get a lot of attention being a majorette because majorettes are what brings the band out. It can be scarry at times when you compete because you're under alot of pressure. You have to work very hard to come out on top.

The main reason I wanted to be a majorette was to prove to myself and to others that I can do something hard and challenging. To be smart and have a good attitude are two qualities held up by our squad.

The well-rounded Arsenia Walker was not only Miss Sophomore, but she was also a majorette in the band.

A Matter Of Words

Understanding correct verb-subject agreement was hard for some students as sophomores — Amy Smith, Stephanie Turner, Denise Williams, Mike Williams and Floyd Long did exercises from the grammar book for practice.

In tenth-grade English, sophomores worked diligently to achieve the high goals set for them by the English department. Vocabulary, literature, and grammar were all thrown at unsuspecting sophomores, sometimes all at once. Those who did not know the spellings, parts of speech, and proper definitions for words such as implacable, incognizant, and reticent soon learned them. Amy Smith said that she thought learning the vocabulary words was a lot easier than literature. Kim Hartman said she felt more secure with grammar than with the literature.

Rules governing noun-subject and pronoun-antecedent, irregular verbs, and proper punctuation were also mentioned. These rules were put into practice while writing the two formal compositions and book report required of every student each six-weeks. However, literature was not neglected. Sophomores struggled through short stories by Maupassant and Saki and many others. As if that were not enough, they suffered further when encountering Shakespeare's Julius Caesar and George Eliot's Silas Marner. Many students disliked the literature as opposed to grammar, for literature demanded knowledge of many details: authors, settings, themes, conflicts, and ironies. Grammar concepts seemed easier for many students to grasp.

Joe King rushed to complete an English assignment on correct agreement in Algebra class that was due next period.

Band Freshmen

This was a time of nervousness for many freshmen. They were kidded, harrassed, and yelled at by upperclassmen. They were often the subjects of many jokes, but they withstood them and made it through their freshman band year. The yelling, embarassing, and many other things did not phase many members. They remained in the band with the thought that one day they would be the upperclassmen and be in control. Some may say that the band is not worth all the hard work, dedication, and patience these young people put in it, but the freshmen thought so. It was worth it to them because it offered a chance to travel, meet new people, and be a part of a winning group. The band freshmen should be proud of themselves because they completed a feat that many others would not have undertaken.

Band freshman Emmanuel Barks played during a pep rally.

The class of 1986 started their high school years in a burst of spirit. They had the first freshmen class with officers since the graduating class of 1980. They have started a tradition that will go on for many years. The Freshmen Class Advisor Sheryl H. Russell took a step to indicate to the Freshmen that not only upper classmen had the right to show pride in their class. Pictured at left the freshmen class officers: President — Rhonda Johnson, Vice-President — David Kozoyed, Secretary — Tracey McNeil, and Treasurer — Laurie Byrd.

The Quiet Times

Classtime, lunchtime, after school meetings and club activities all had periods of quiet. Students settled down and concentrated on the issues at hand.

Teachers eagerly sought the quiet of the faculty office and a moment or two of solitude.

A corner of the cafeteria was relatively quiet. Small groups of friends would meet for lunch and catching up on the day's news. Sarah Wilson, Daphne Parker, and Kim Britton shared the day's activities.

Spirit From The "Top"

Principal Olivia T. Hinton has embodied the spirit of which Mustangs are so proud. Attending almost every school event as well as running a school, Portsmouth's first female high school principal has set goals and challenges for her students as well as for herself. She never has asked more than she has been willing to give. Left: Mrs. Hinton greeted the crowd during the Homecoming parade.

Principal's Message:

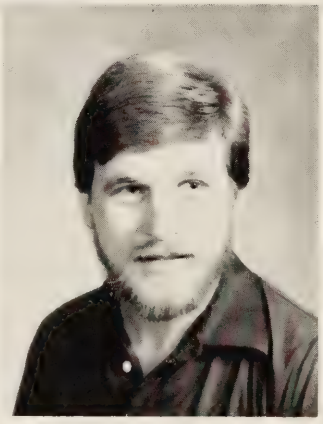
We at Manor High are very proud of the Class of 1983. You hold a special place of distinction with me personally since you are the first class to have completed all four years with my serving as principal.

As Freshmen you heard me say that you have many golden opportunities lying before you. To claim them involves imagination, vision, and a great deal of effort. That is just as true today as it was then. As Sophomores I challenged you to satisfy yourself with nothing less than your best in all future undertakings. Many of you have succeeded in accepting that challenge. As Juniors I emphasized that the extent to which you succeed depends largely upon your willingness to work diligently toward your future ambitions. I hope that my desire for you to do nothing less than your best becomes a contagious attitude spread throughout the Class of 1983. CONGRATULATIONS FOR A JOB WELL DONE!!

Leon Potter, Assistant Principal

Lindell Wallace, Assistant Principal

W.C. Cooke, Security



Charles E. Brown, Administrative Assistant

Terry Atkins, Building Engineer

Lectures And Transparencies

Teachers used transparencies as well as lecture format in order to present materials. Mrs. Betty Lucas, a Spanish teacher, stated that the chalkboard was her most valuable tool, because she was able to get the same information to all students.

Mrs. Veronica Evans said that she placed emphasis on key words, by means of repetition. Mr. Thomas Smithwick and Mrs. Evalene Hargrove said that they preferred using audio and visual aids.

Mrs. Judy Moore made history come alive by assuming the roles of famous characters. Role playing was an effective tool for student as well as teacher involvement, because one had to try and think as the person from the past.

Dixie Anchors — Algebra I, Math 10. Diane Babilon — Marketing and Advanced Marketing. Lynn C. Bonner — Librarian. Nancy Bradley — French I, II, III — French Club. Diane Burroughs — Math 9, Pre-Algebra, Varsity and J.V. Cheerleaders.

Richard Cash — U.S. History, Sociology, SGA, Interclub Council, Mustang Express, Pep Club. David Cornelius — Woodworking, AIASA. Veronica Evans — U.S. Government, Geography. Barbara Flynn — Spanish I, II — Spanish Club. Dorothy U. Gallop — Clerk Typing I, FBLA. William E. Gibson, Jr. — Beginning Band, Adv. Band, Intermediate Band.

The humanities could be as bewildering to the teacher as well as the student. Mrs. Moore (left) and Mr. Pfeiffer (above) pondered over what new concepts could be added to broaden students horizons.

C.L. Hampton — General Business, Beginning Typewriting, Record Keeping, FBLA. Evelyn Hargrove — U.S. History, World Geography, Junior Class Sponsor. Harriet Heath — Mixed Chorus, Girls Glee, Girls Ensemble, Mens Glee, Manor Singers. Michael Hillinch — Physical Science. Sarah Holleran — English 11, NHS. Rose Faulk Horne — Math 10, Algebra, Trig.

Marcella F. McNeil — Geometry, Physics, Math 10 — Sophomore Class Sponsor
Vincent Mitchell — English 9, Public Speaking Drama I, and Drama II
Judy Moore — U.S. History, World History, Economics
Barbara Norris — Algebra II, and Math Analysis
Sharon Oast — Typewriting and Bus. Law — FBLA

Larry Parker — Industrial Arts, Sponsor AIASA
Sue Penny — Family Living, Home Economics I Future Homemakers Of America
Sheryl Russell — Steno I, Beginning Shorthand
Nettie Stephenson — Chemistry, Physical Science, Science Club
Genevive Swinton — English 9, English 12

John Thomas — U.S. Government, World History
Evelyn Wall — English 9, English 12
S. Washington — Study Hall
Leroy Williams — English 12, Journalism
Coach — Football and Baseball
Susan Yearby — U.S. Government, Yearbook Adv.

A Full Time Substitute

A teacher who was better known than most was substitute Mrs. Phyllis Leathers. She has been substituting at Manor for five years. When asked why not teach full-time, she replied, "By substituting sporatically I am given the freedom to decide upon whether or not I want to work on a given day". Mrs. Leathers has filled in every department and has met most of the student body.

Mrs. Leathers stated that the best situation for a substitute teacher is the satisfaction that is received from aiding a student that desires help.

Special Delivery: Studio Delays Photos

Angela Bell — English 9, English 10.
Tony Colden — Study, Var. Football.
Robert Copeland — Dis. Educ., Fashion Merchandising,
Darnell Johnson — Gen. Math, Pre-Algebra.
Marvin Leathers — Industrial Arts.
Melody Lubich — Phys. Ed. Var. Basketball, Softball.

Betty Lucas — Span, I, III, Spanish Club.
Larry Malonee — Power Mechanics, Wood Construction, World Trans.
Mary McClinton — Library, A.V.
Peggy Peebles — Health and P.E.
Kenneth Porter — Art I, Art Club.
Thomas Smithwick — Graphic Arts, Communications.

Guidance: Counseling And Assistance

The Guidance Department has provided career counseling and given solid advice to students every year. Head counselor, Mrs. Marianne Lamberton worked with the senior class. Counselors Mrs. Geraldine Hatfield and Mrs. Gloria Richardson divided their responsibilities among the other grade levels.

Patience Above All

Mrs. Carole Sawyer, secretary in the Guidance Office, was always ready to help parents and students.

"I enjoy working in this office because I get to know the students better."

Knowing that there was someone to ask about procedure was helpful to faculty members also. Mrs. Sawyer's patience and willingness to help no matter the size of the problem were special traits that were much appreciated by those at Manor.

Office Staff: Working Together

Mrs. Jackie Thompson has been the office manager of Manor since the summer of 1973. Her work was shown through letters, memorandums, handbooks, and all paper work that we received. The job of office manager has been one that required great skill and knowledge in various areas. She received her Bachelor's Degree in Business Education, and a minor in Secretarial Science at Norfolk State University. Although she had a busy job, she still had time for activities in the Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and as her church youth group director. Of course, the Main Office couldn't have been kept in order without the other staff members.

Mrs. Cindy Davis, the school nurse, was always ready to administer peppermint candy to students with headaches, stomach pains, cuts or bruises.

Ms. Kathy Saunders worked busily in the office by issuing a verdict of excused or unexcused absences.

Mrs. Margaret Gatling, the school treasurer, enjoyed her job of managing all money matters, whether it was giving students change or issuing checks.

Second Semester Brings Staff Change

Mr. Robert Claud joined the faculty at the beginning of second semester. He replaced Mr. Cash who had taught Sociology and World History.

It wasn't easy to begin a year in February, but Mr. Claud was an experienced teacher who was impressed by the way students and faculty were willing to help. The students especially had to learn his expectations. Time enabled both Mr. Claud and his students to make the adjustments necessary in order to complete the year's instruction.

Cafeteria And Custodial Staff

Cafeteria Manager: Mrs. Josephine Wiggins.

Cafeteria Staff: Mrs. O. Jones and Mrs. I. Fisher.

Chefs: Mrs. Mitchell and Mrs. Hurdle.

Cafeteria Staff: Mrs. R. Moore

Cashier: Mrs. R. Porter.

Housekeeper: Mrs. L. Spruill

Housekeeper: Mrs. J. Gatling.

Can You Hear It? We've Got The Spirit!!

Mike Harris joined the celebration after another cager victory.

Senior Tatia Woodley knew how to let out class spirit at a pep rally.

Tamara Lumpkin, Lisa Clinton, and Enetria Smith helped lead the singing of the National Anthem.

Teachers Blanton, Copeland, and Swinton got in step to show their spirit.

Spirit
Con't.

One might have thought that spirit was the special property of a senior. Pep rallies were the scenes of senior "mania" and the high point for school and class spirit. Below: Mr. and Mrs. David Blackwell gave solid support to the basketball team.

Above: Don Haskett decorated the office tree as a reminder of Christmas spirit. Below: Wendell Scott, #70, showed great spirit by playing football for four years.

Spotlight On Excellence

Amand Mines

Amand Keith Mines, valedictorian of the Class of '83, could be considered a down to earth young man. He spent a hour or more studying and doing homework, and hoped that this studious habit would enable him to get accepted to a very good college; "I want to go to the College of William and Mary, but whatever school I attend I hope to major in government and later attend law school."

Amand felt that some courses in high school were easy and some were difficult, but elective courses were the easiest. Amand Mines replied to how it felt to be number one in his class by saying, "It feels great to be first, but the rank only counts on your high school record. I just do not feel smarter than anyone else."

Mark Whitaker

There were many talented people in our graduating class, but not many were able to be a fantastic basketball player, a gifted tennis player, SGA President, and a honor graduate. The only person who could be described in this way was Mark Whitaker.

He had to manage his time very carefully, "I manage my time properly and I do things in order of their importance."

The role of SGA President was challenging, "It gave me a chance to learn how to accept responsibility and be a good leader."

Mark felt that the major problem in the school was the lack of student participation, but he said, "This problem could be solved by more student participation, more school spirit, and better faculty — student relations."

Mark said his plans for after high school were "to attend college and play in Division I level of basketball competition. My major will be either computer science or electrical engineering. I'll probably settle down after college."

Mike Harris

If Manor had a spirit award it would undoubtedly be awarded to sports' trainer Mike Harris. You would see him at football, basketball, and baseball games, and last year he helped the tennis team. He cheered these teams through unsuccessful and successful seasons, but no matter what the outcome he never lacked spirit, enthusiasm, and pride in the teams he had aided.

He helped the teams in various ways, "I carried equipment and helped to loosen the team up before a game."

Mike Harris was a good example of what the word spirit meant. Even though he did not attend Manor, he showed everyone that you do not have to attend a certain school to have pride in it.

Cedric Reid

"It felt good to be known as the top drum major, but most of all it felt good to be a drum major for the Marching Mustangs." This was said by one of Manor's premier drum majors — Cedric Reid.

Cedric has not only been one of our best drum majors, but he also had some influence on the drum majors from arch rival Norcom. Shawn Close said, "He influenced me in some way because he knew how to handle himself in various situations." Both drum majors from Norcom felt that marching against Cedric was something to remember. James Ely said, "Going against Cedric was good because it gave us competition and pushed us to be better."

Cedric Reid lived up to his expectation of what a drum major had to do. "I had always looked up to the position of drum major since I was a freshman. It was a position of pride and leadership."

There were times when even Cedric felt afraid, but he overcame these predicaments, "I remember the first football game, I had butterflies in my stomach, but once I heard the crowd I knew all eyes were on me. The crowd let me know that I was in control."

When asked how it felt to win all of his competitions he replied, "It was a very rewarding feeling, and my reward was making my friends, family, and school proud."

Special People Are In The Spotlight

Aaron Sawyer

Aaron Sawyer was the only student announcer in the Southeastern District. He wanted to be an announcer because no one else did it, "The idea entered my head when I saw someone announce a basketball game, and I remembered Manor did not have an announcer." He asked Mrs. Hinton if he could announce our games, and she left the decision up to the coaches. Fortunately the coaches did not mind, and Aaron Sawyer became an announcer in his junior year.

There were problems that Aaron had to conquer, but he was able to solve them. He came back in his senior year and was very successful. His first night as an announcer found him nervous, "I was shaky at first, but I remembered everything I saw other announcers do and just went on with my job."

Aaron admitted that he had his share of ups and downs, but he came through, "Sure I had problems. I couldn't play favoritism, the visiting team sometimes threw things at me, and sometimes I couldn't be heard. These problems got me down at times, but it never stopped me."

Aaron felt he proved something to himself as well as to others, "I proved that I was active, crazy, lovable, and a super senior!"

Mr. John Shotzberger

Mr. Shotzberger was one of the nicest people at Manor. He managed the school at night by overlooking the operations and functions that went on in Manor after dark.

Mr. Shotzberger helped students and teachers out whenever he could. If he could not help in some way he offered a word of encouragement.

He has been at Manor since April 1972. He said, "I have seen many changes in the attitudes of the kids. The students' attitudes today compared with the students' attitudes earlier in the school's opening have changed immensly. The change in attitude is for the better."

Deirdre Hinton

Deirdre Hinton was the only person from Manor who was a member of Tidewater Youth. Tidewater Youth is sponsored by the Virginia Orchestra Group. She was one of three oboe players in the orchestra.

Deirdre was talented in music and academics. She graduated with honors and was the president of the National Honor Scoiety. She was also the secretary for the Senior Class. "Being president of the Honor Society was a nice experience, and it offered me the chance to accept responsibility. I thought being secretary of the Senior Class was challenging."

During her four years at Manor, Deirdre liked being in the band, "It was hard work, but it was worth it. The competitions, trips, and some of the practices were fun."

Deirdre felt that being with her friends and participating in school activities was great fun, but stated, "I'll miss my friends, but I'm ready to move on. I hope to attend Howard University and major in microbiology."

Angela Williams

"It was a dirty job, but somebody had to do it!" said yearbook editor Angela Williams. Her job as editor kept her very busy, "I would proof read pages and copy, draw lay outs, and crop pictures. At first I wasn't very good at doing that because it was my first year of being on the yearbook staff, but through trial and error I became good at it."

The yearbook kept her busy, but she was able to participate in other organizations. Angela was vice- president of the National Honor Society, "I felt that being a member of the Honor Society was great, but to have been vice-president was even better."

Angela also gave part of her time to debate, "Debating was challenging and fun. It made me think of quick responses, and it taught me how to keep my temper under control."

High school offered a lot of fun times for Angela. She felt that all the organizations that she belonged to were enjoyable, "Everything that I participated in was enjoyable to me, but the most fun came in my senior year. The most enjoyable times came when I was working with the yearbook staff."

"I hope to attend the University of Virginia and study medicine or law. However, my goal in life is to be successful in whatever I decide to do."

AUTOGRAPHS

Piñata Time

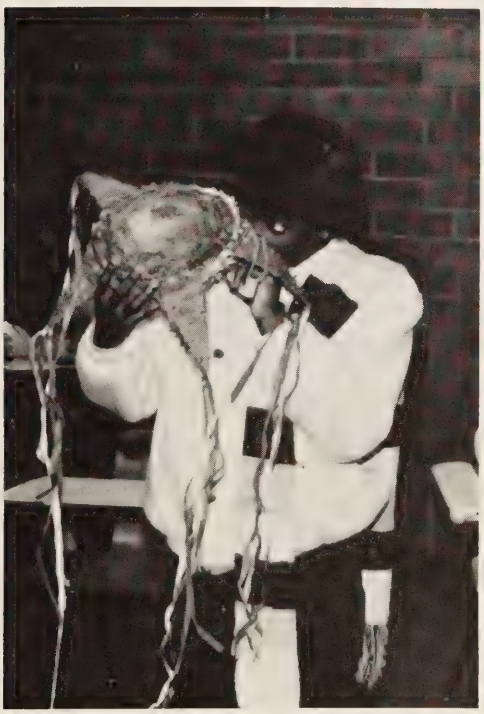
The Spanish Club made piñatas at their first meeting as a surprise activity. The piñata was customarily made on special holidays, birthdays, and Christmas in Spanish speaking countries. The making of the piñatas required time and patience. The Spanish Club had to shred newspaper into strips and form a figure by pasting the shreds together with a paste made from starch, flour, and water. The making of the piñatas may have been messy at times, but it was a fun activity with wonderful results.

For the Spanish Club, making piñatas meant group activity and much fun.



Cynthia Cherry checked to make sure that the pinata had no empty spaces without paper.

Lisa Howard, William Brooks, Robert Jeffrey, and Miss Lucas admired a finished piñata.

Jackets, Scarves, Mittens, And Hats

By mid-January there had been only snow flurries. The cold weather had alternated with Indian Summer throughout November and December.

Right: The snow, even a little snow, made staying in school very difficult. Sandy Cox and Terri Pfeiffer headed home after the final bell rang.

A poll asking "How do you feel about getting up on a very cold Morning?" resulted in the following responses:

Veronica Williams: "I don't!" Juanita Williams: "I think about it at least three times!" Mark Whitaker: "I like cold weather."

The mass exodus at two p.m. wasn't easy in cold weather when students had to put on jackets, gloves, and mufflers. Connie Gray kept moving as she prepared to face the cold temperature outside.

Keeping warm could be quite a challenge to a cheerleader. The legs felt no warmth from a jacket. Pennie Turner got ready to leave school on a day when she was to cheer for the J.V. basketball team.

Mainstreaming! A City First

Robert (Bobby) Carter:
I think mainstreaming is a nice idea. When I first came to Manor High, I got the impression that the students acted as one big family.

Robert (Scott) Spradlin:
When I first heard about mainstreaming at Manor High School, I was excited because I spent most of my life homebound and most of my friends were at Manor High. This new experience gave me an opportunity to be around and meet more people.

Brenda Wynn:
I think mainstreaming is a great experience. It gave me a chance to be around more of my peers. I have to admit that before I came here I was a little nervous about how everybody would accept me, but I found out I did not have anything to worry about. Being in high school is a real challenge, but I like that, and I think it's worth it.

The "Shortest" Thirty Minutes Of The Day

Students were always ready to eat, and lunch time seemed to take forever to arrive. The decrease in student enrollment resulted in the reduction of lunch periods from three to two daily. Students with fourth period in the Humanities wing ate first lunch at 10:43 a.m. and all others ate second lunch at 11:39 a.m.

A variety of new foods, including cupcakes and cinnamon buns, were added to the menu, but the ever popular french fries still accompanied every serving. Special meals such as the Thanksgiving turkey were delicious and quite popular.

Above: Felicia Hurdle just couldn't wait to begin her meal. A fry was a tempting hors d'oeuver. Below: Carolyn Brown and Kim Spencer made their selection from the salads and fruits.

Lunch period was not exactly leisurely, but most students found time not only to eat, but also to enjoy visiting with friends.

Cashier Mareen Shoemaker helped to speed students through the lunch line.

Junior Mona Freeman paid Bernice Waggoner and then hurried to find a place where she could sit and enjoy her meal.

Tidewater Challenge and the Ledger-Star Scholastic Team provided area competition among the schools. Students who excelled in academics as well as the arts, and athletics brought distinction not only to themselves, but also to the school.

The wide variety of awards achieved during the past year were a tribute to the extra hours of work and the ability of students and faculty alike to rise above what was expected.

VARIETIES OF EXCELLENCE

One Great Summer!!!

The Virginia Governor's school for the Gifted and Talented took place at Mary Washington College from June 10th to July 20th 1982. It was an honor to be selected for this program which enabled students to pursue college courses without the pressure of grades. Tim Cherry and Marvette Warren (pictured at the right) were selected to attend in the summer of 1982.

Marvette studied economics, journalism, political science and swimming. Tim took courses in volleyball, political science, history and radio broadcasting which trained him to be a deejay on the school station WILD.

Governor's school was not all work. All students participated daily in supervised recreation. They could attend movies and participate in talent shows and team competitions. "Governor's school was a great experience," said Marvette, "and I met a lot of people."

Middle Right: Another Able and Ambitious Program was Marine Science, in which Donald Taylor, Lillie Lindsay, and Shelton Davis, participated. Top: Amy Harrison also participated in a summer program: The Virginia Music Educators Association, Honors Choir held in Richmond. Right: Top Row: Boys state: Ricardo Randall, Amand Mines, Harry Jenkins, Mark Whitaker Bottom Row: Girls state: Cheryl Clisby, Tamara Lumpkin, Amy Harrison, and Terri Pfeiffer

Ledger — Star Scholastic Team Honors Top Of The Class

Junior team members consisted of returnees Timothy Cherry and Lori Wilson with newcomer Shelton Davis.

Members of the Scholastic Team were chosen on the basis of superb achievement in academics, citizenship, and school and community activities. Nine team members were chosen at the end of the first semester. The team was limited to students taking academic courses.

A single senior class member from the team was chosen for the South Hampton Roads Scholastic Achievement Team to compete for a $4,000 scholarship.

Newcomers to the Scholastic Team were sophomore members Mark Griffith, Melissa Lindsay, and Jeff Dover.

Senior team members were Angela Crabb, Amand Mines, and Angela Williams. Angela Crabb is the school's Tidewater Team Member.

Students Excel In Music And Academics

Right: Mark Whitaker and Terri Pfeiffer were selected as the outstanding male and female students at Manor by the Protsmouth Optimist Club. They were selected on the basis of school and community involvement and scholarship.

Right: During the summer, some talented Mustangs participated in city-wide Able and Ambitious programs. Dana Brown (seated center) was in the Drama A & A at Churchland High School. They presented a play entitled "Welcome to the Monkeyhouse". Tamara Lumpkin, Mike Gray, Janet Cherry, Shaun Suddeth, and Enetria Smith (left to right) performed in the Music A & A at Manor. They were part of a show choir that performed a medley from "Oliver!".

Tamara Lumpkin and Terri Pfeiffer attended the Presidential Classroom in Washington, D.C. for one week. The week was designed to provide insight on government policies and opinions in national and international affairs.

Kitty Smith, Mike Gray, Tim Cherry, Jimmy Hamlin, and Tammy Lumpkin were the Manor students selected to participate in the All-Virginia Chorus that was held in Winchester, Va. May 5-7

In its fourth year of production, the Able and Ambitious show was more spectacular than ever. "Highway America", under the direction of Bill Griggs, featured forty high school students who performed in a show choir. Back Row: Keith Rogers, David Kozoyed, Wayne Thomas, Mike Gray. Middle Row: Enetria Smith, Jana Davenport, Mary Kidd. Front Row: Kitty Smith, Roxanne Long, Vonda Thomas.

Mustangs Invade The Big Apple

On January 27, 1983, 36 social studies students were winging their way to the Big Apple. The excitement was evident for the many first time flyers on the 7:00 am Piedmont flight to Newark. After arriving in Newark, the students boarded a bus to New York City, where they deposited their baggage at the spacious Hotel Taft.

A thrilling subway ride was taken to the World Trade Center and an elevator was taken to the observation deck on the 107th floor of this magnificent building. Lunch was eaten there while the students enjoyed a breath-taking view of the buildings below.

A walk through the graveyard of beautiful Trinity Church lead to a tour of the Federal Hall Memorial, the place where George Washington was inaugurated. After a short walk, the students took a tour of the bustling New York Stock Exchange. From an observation deck, the students viewed the rapid buying and selling of stocks occuring on the floor.

Next on the itinerary was a chilly ferry ride to the Statue of Liberty from Battery Park. Several students climbed the statue while others chose to observe from below.

Another subway ride brought the students back to the hotel. After resting and having dinner, the students participated in various night-time activities. One group of students went to the Princess Theater to see the hit broadway musical "Pump Boys and Dinettes." Another group went to Rockefeller Center for an exciting evening of ice skating. A third group shopped at the famous Macy's and Gimbles department stores.

Returning from their thrilling excursions, the students discussed the days activities and retired at a 12:00 curfew.

The students were up bright and early for a 7:15 am breakfast. After eating, a walking tour was held at the United Nations Building. International problems were explained by tour guides from many different countries.

After returning to the hotel, the students were divided into groups. One group took a thrilling, fact-finding tour of Harlem, while the others chose to visit museums. The museums were the Museum of Natural History and the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

After returning to the hotel, the students grabbed a quick dinner minutes before catching the bus back to the airport for the flight to Norfolk. The students relaxed and reminisced about their fun-filled trip to the Big Apple. "It's a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there", exclaimed Tammy Lumpkin. Deirdre Hinton stated, "If I had stayed longer, I would have been discovered." Despite their frost bitten faces and sore feet, all students agreed that the trip was a smashing success.

The students who went on the tour of the Museum of Natural History took a break after walking 35 blocks through the streets of New York.

The Mustangs showed off proof from their visit to the Big Apple. Standing: Kathleen Johnson, Lillie Lindsay, Tamara Lumpkin, Amand Mines and Larry Akers. Kneeling: Yolanda Johnson, Amy Harrison, and Terri Pfeiffer.

Standing: Donna Mabus, Karen Forbes, Suzanne DeMarco, Chrisann Trollinger, Tammy Newman, and Deirdre Hinton. Kneeling: Arnetta Vaughan, Lisa Belton, and Kim West.

The chaperones, including Mr. Thomas, Mrs. Hargrove, Mrs. Yearby, and Mr. Cash took time to pose before boarding the ferry to the Statue of Liberty.

The Rockefeller Center with its beautiful surrounding statues was viewed by students who went ice skating.

The breathtaking view of the Manhattan shoreline was an unforgettable sight seen by all tourists.

The famous Statue of Liberty was the most well known tourist attraction in New York. Below: The expression on the faces of Deirdre Hinton, Tamara Lumpkin, and Terri Pfeiffer displayed that they enjoyed the subway ride to the World Trade Center.

The "take off" was a very frightening experience for Mustangs who hand't flown before. Left: Larry Akers, Amy Harrison, and Jo Anne Allen.

Techniques Of Building And Design

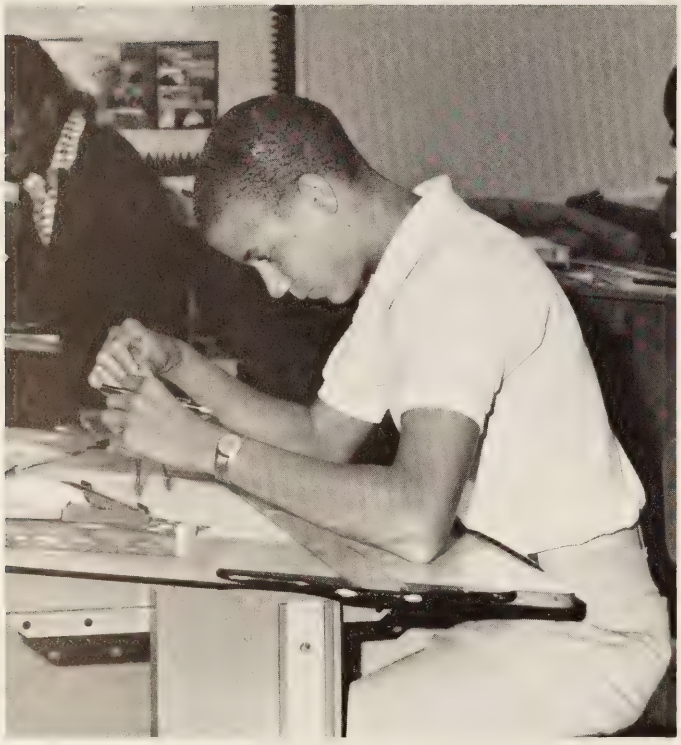
The Industrial Arts Department had a program which included courses in drafting, woodworking, metal shop, and even automotive repair. Students who entered this wing of the school were given the opportunity to learn skills of manual dexterity.

Courses titled the World of Construction and the World of Transportation were available to train students in areas of future employment. Sometimes students learned how to make small items as well as how to make minor household repairs.

Future engineers, carpenters, and construction workers all followed courses of instruction in this department.

The Industrial Arts Department float was always an engineering feat. Steven Daye and Steve Cross worked applying aluminum foil to part of the lunar module which won second place in the Homecoming float competition.



Learning to use the tools of the trade was a vital part of the classroom experience. Mathan Wilson designed a sheet metal layout using a compass.

David Culpepper worked on a sheet metal layout using a T-square. Accuracy and neatness were an essential part of learning to design.

I Must Dissect — What?!!

Dr. Saunders explained the dark and light reactions to Jeff Dover. This was to help him prepare for the major test on photosynthesis.

An interview with Denise Williams after an especially gruesome biology class left us with this impression:

Well, here I was in biology class again. By habit, the first thing I did was to look at the blackboard. Dr. Saunders had impressed this technique from beginning biology onto my "Cerebral cortex." I sat down and turned around to talk with some of my friends before class started. Dr. Saunders soon stopped the conversation and got our attention. Much to our surprise, the daily lesson plans had been changed. Today was the day on which we were to dissect frogs!! Shock horror, and "Oh, no's" filled the room. The brave boys were ready and a few girls seemed unconcerned. Each student got a partner and put on the old rubber gloves. A frog was placed on the table before us and we looked at each other and then at the frog! We pinned the frog's limbs to the wax and slowly cut the frog down the middle. We then identified and cut out specific organs. This was written up in a lab report. I was glad when it was over. I had forgotten one thing, however — after this class — I had lunch!!

Amy Smith seemed to be fascinated with Dr. Saunders' goldfish tank. She took a break from copying notes from off of the overhead projector to observe this peaceful setting.

Biology-X students Mark Griffith, Adrienne Bond, Mark Dignard, and Scott Spradlin appeared to like classifying animals better than dissecting them. Dr. Saunders took time to note some of the characteristics of the animals.

Only The Preacher Was Not Real

Members of the wedding party were: Wendy Williams — Bride; Tim Jackson — Groom; Eldrena Upshur — Minister; Keith Downs, Edward Shields, Karen Dunbar, and Terry Elliot — witnesses.

A mock wedding held in November was the combined effort of the Sociology and Family Living classes. The experience was designed to allow students to participate in actual wedding preparations including decision making and awareness of costs and details.

The wedding was covered by Channel 13 TV News and the Portsmouth Times Advocate, a local newspaper.

Groom Tim Jackson said in a TV interview that he was not nervous and he felt that the experience would prepare him for an event that he just might go through in the future.

The TV camera made the participants more nervous than they might have otherwise been, but the wedding went off without any errors.

The reception was held in the Home Ec rooms. Students prepared all of the food, including the traditional wedding cake. Tim and Wendy cut the cake together.

Making their exit to the reception, Tim and Wendy were spared the rice thrown at most brides and grooms. They went to their reception where guests greeted them and enjoyed a feast.

One of the most important parts of any wedding ceremony is the exchange of rings. Tim Jackson placed the ring on his bride's finger while Maid-of-Honor Karen Dunbar looked on.

An Assembly Line Without Automation

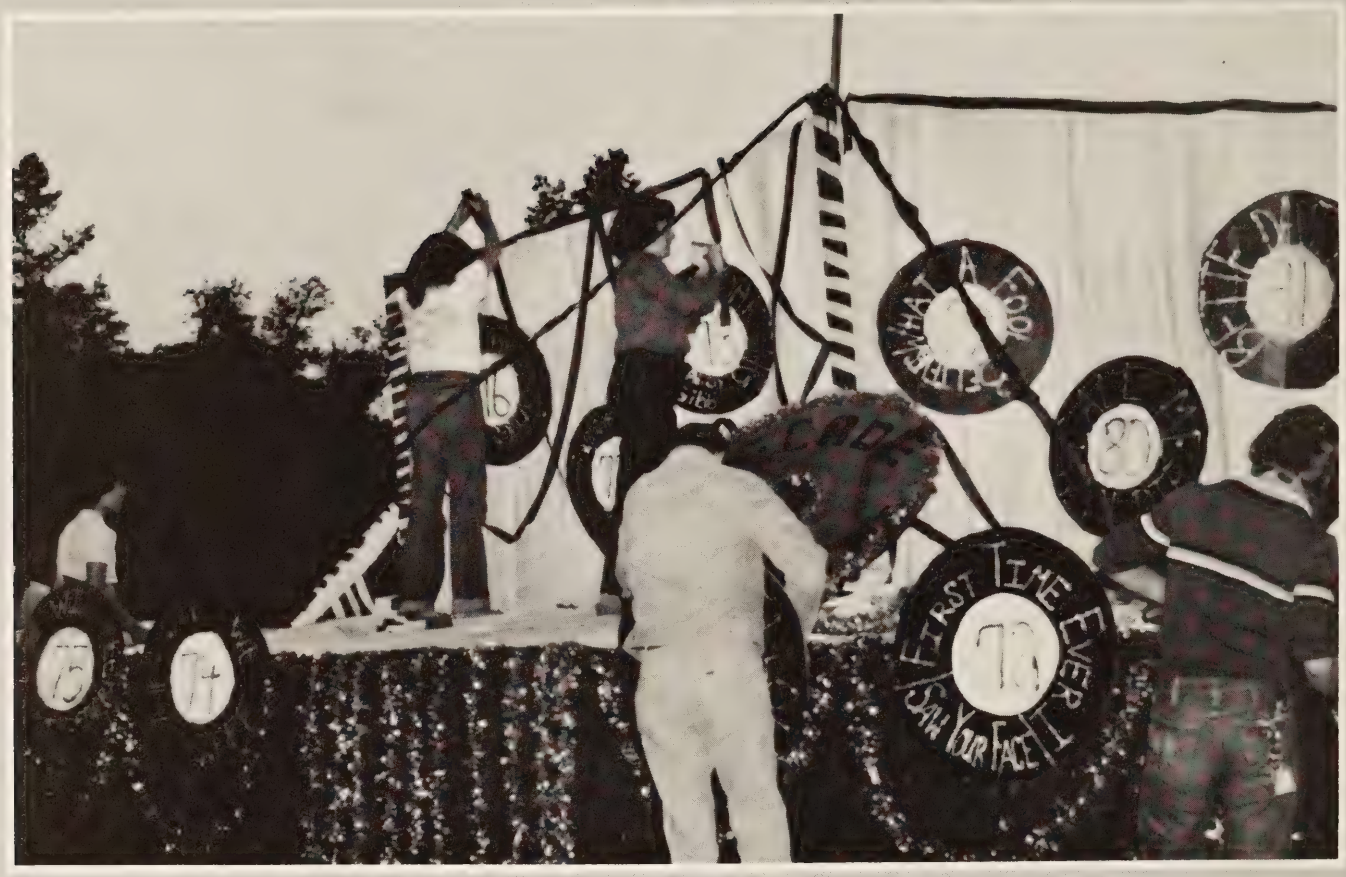
Above: Mrs. Moore introduced the idea of creating an assembly line to her class so that they could better understand how it works. Here she supervised as Anne Bacon and Joe Cannon work.

Above right: Cyndi Little, Larry Akers, and Alisa Tilley found out that work is far more than fun and games. Larry cut the garbage bags into strips while Alisa and Cyndi tied them into rounded hangers.

Left: Arthur Goodman, Tammy Lumpkin, Cyndi Little, Joe Cannon, and Jerry Watson examined the final product to check its quality.

Have you ever wondered what it would be like working on an assembly line? Mrs. Moore's third period Economics class did. Before Christmas break the class decided to make Christmas wreaths out of white and green plastic trash bags. All of the class members were stockholders. Larry Akers, Tammy Lumpkin, and Cyndi Little were elected as members of the board. Bobby Corbett was elected as production manager. The president of the company was Darryl Johnson. Everyone in the class applied for a position within the company. Positions included cutters, who cut the thrash bags into small strips; tiers, who tied the strips on the hangers and trimmers, who trimmed the finished wreaths into shape. Once the product was finished bows were added for decoration.

The entire class took part in the making of the wreaths. The workers on the assembly line had different opinions of working on the lines. Lynn Bremby said, "I didn't get bored with my job, but if I had to do it everyday, I would want music too." Shaun LaLonde said, "It gave us a chance to try something new and made us realize that work isn't all fun and games." Brenda Phelps thought that it was a very good experience. "But" she said, "I wouldn't want to do it for a living." Most of the workers thought the work to be boring after a while. They would prefer to work at a job that wouldn't be so monotonous. It is always better to be your own boss!



There were many opportunities for students to be involved during the course of a school year. Anyone who wanted to participate could join up.

Talented people were active in art, music, or industrial arts. Those who had a flair for foreign languages had three clubs to choose from.

Merchandising, homemaking, and business skills tied people together as they trained for the future.

Service oriented groups worked to better relations with the community. "Operation Santa Clause" and the Blood Drive were two major activities which increased awareness of the needs of others.

Governing The Ranks And Helping Others

Homecoming, the annual Red Cross Blood Drive, and Operation Santa Claus were just a few of the activities sponsored by the Student Government Association. The SGA officers and advisory board organized activities as diverse as the student body.

The SGA was also an important link to the community. Collecting money for the United Way and collecting canned foods for needy families were two efforts to tie the student body to society.

The final activity of the SGA was the election of officers for the coming school year.

Amand Mines, Harry Jenkins, and Mark Whitaker collected the cans and counted them for the annual Thanksgiving canned food drive.

SGA Officers and Advisory Board: Tamara Lumpkin, Robin Holley, Harry Jenkins, Angela Mayo, Sonja Bruce — Secretary, Stephanie Harmon — Vice-President, Mark Whitaker — President, Mr. Richard Cash — Sponsor, Lisa Belton — Publicity Director, Janet Millner — Treasurer, Crystal Johnson, Romy Scott, Deirdre Hinton.

Homeroom Representatives:

Coordination And Cooperation

The Inter-Club Council, under the leadership of Stephanie Harmon, SGA Vice-President, and Mrs. Richard Cash, SGA sponsor, attempted to coordinate activities among the various organizations. Members of the Inter-Club Council were:
Standing: Maria Moore, Wanda Ruffin, Ricardo Randall, Deirdre Hinton, Lisa Thompson, Amand Mines, Mr. Richard Cash — sponsor. Seated: Mark Whitaker, Romy Scott, Stephanie Harmon, Dana Brown, Terri Pfeiffer, Marvette Warren.

Building Good Community Relations

The Industrial Arts Club members have tremendously improved since last year. The group designed and built the third place float in the annual Homecoming Float Competition. This club helped others by raising $50.00 for the United Way Campaign and collected 554 cans for the Canned Food Drive. Their plans for this year included organizing a Toy Manufacturing Project for the needy children during Christmas. A wheel chair ramp will be constructed inside the Little Theater for the handicapped.

The 1971 Space Lunar Rover provided the inspiration for the AIASA Homecoming Float. Man's technological achievement were a high point of the 70's. The AIASA constructed a Lunar Rover for Manor's 1982 Homecoming. Lunar Rover was made of car parts, cardboard, aluminum foil and spray paint. The AIASA float won third place in Manor's Homecoming Competition. Kenny Magee said "I think it was a good example of how Manor High School students can work together."

Hard Work Gains Recognition

The National Honor Society, sponsored by Mr. Holleran, was an elite group of students. The students maintained high standards in the areas of scholarship, leadership, service, and citizenship.

Sophomores and juniors maintained a 3.200 cumulative average and did not receive a grade of below average. Seniors followed the same requirements with a cumulative average of 3.000.

The members worked hard to maintain their high standards. They presented teachers with Christmas trinkets in December, and inducted the new members in February.

The major fundraising project for the Science Club was selling tickets to the film "The Creeping Flesh", a science fiction thriller. The funds were used to help sponsor the Science Fair held in February. The Science Club also sent many students to symposiums at Virginia Tech and in Washington, D.C. The club was sponsored by Mrs. Stephenson and Dr. Saunders.

Standing: Chris Coleson, Jacqueline Gore, Lillie Lindsay, Tracey Walden, Huron Winstead, Sonja Jones, Shelton Davis, Harry Jenkins, Ricardo Randall — Vice-President, Rodney Price, Kelly Miller. Kneeling: Amy Harrison, Susan McNair, Tamara Lumpkin — Treasurer, Terri Pfeiffer — President, Rosalind Epps, Tracie Kee, Allen DeSouza, Tracey McNeil, Sitting: Cynthia Graddy, Cheryl Clisby — Publicity, Angela Mayo — Secretary, Lisa Thompson, Deirdre Hinton, Amy Allison, Melissa Lindsay.

The annual winners of the Homecoming float were members of the Art Club. Club members also participated in decorating the school for Christmas. The club presented its annual Art Show at Manor High School in March. The Club has participated in the Annual Arts and Crafts Traveling Art Show for the past seven years. Members of the club presented their talents in the Final Student Art Gallery in Norfolk, Virginia.

The ranks of the Marching Mustangs was under one hundred, but that didn't keep them from being first in area competitions. The group placed first in Norfolk State's Band Day. Each unit was first in its division.

A special trip in February took the band to New Orleans. They participated for the first time in the Mardi Gras Parade.

Sophomore flag carrier Kendra Ricks felt that the band was the best extra-curricular activity. She said, "You have to work hard, but the reward of being number one is definitely worth the sweat, long hours, and sacrifices."

The band began practicing during the heat of August. The summer sun made marching difficult, but the band was always in top form for the first football game.

The routines of the Mustangs delighted crowds on both sides of the game field. Dancing and singing in perfect unison brought ovations from not only the Manor side, but also from the visitors.

Majorettes: Freda Ingram, Keisha Atkinson, Natashi Reid, Arsenia Walker, Arleta Walker.

Flag Corps: Kim Spencer, Jewell Vinson, Patrice Owens, Tammy Artis, Kendra Ricks, Lisa Rountree, Stephanie Harmon, Dana Brown, Tracy McNeil.

Percussion: Albert Moore, Woody Harvey, George Robinson, Terry Moore, William Dunn, Floyd Long, Leonard Lipscomb, Michael Downy, Joseph Cannon.

Precise Rhythm

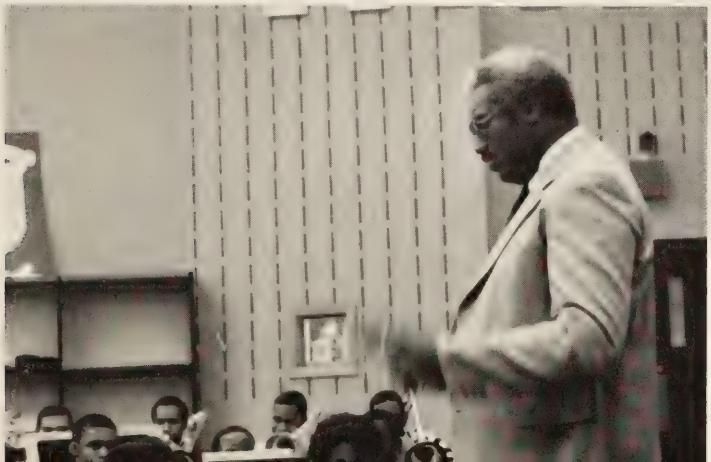
Tubas: Alfred Bishop, George Lindsay, Levelle Turner, Anthony Yarborough, Thomas Harris.



Director William Gibson demanded precision and accuracy from band members. His group was known for its musicianship and parade ability.

Brass Can Be Beautiful

Trombones: Kenneth Johnson, Ricardo Randall, John Bridgeford, Maurice Harris, Emmanuel Barks.

Baritones: Dexter Ferguson, Vincent Johnson, Henry Mabry.

The Future Business Leaders of America is a co-curricular organization open to all business students. Members work together on social and financial projects as well as activities that increase their business knowledge and skills.

This year the FBLA made Christmas gifts for the elderly at Autumn Care Nursing Home. They also sold stationary for a fund raising project.

Selected students from the different business courses competed in the Regional Business Competition held at Thomas Nelson Community College in March. Outstanding students who won at the Regional Competition went on to the State Competition which was held in Richmond in the Spring.

Practicality And Domestic Skills

Future Homemakers of America was an organization which prepared its members for domestic survival in the future. There were fifty members in the group and they participated in several activities during the past year. Preparing a Christmas party for underprivileged and handicapped children was rewarding to all participants.

National Vocational Week held in February gave the group an opportunity to promote the club and recruit at Waters Jr. High. Some members also traveled to Roanoke for a state leadership conference.

"I'm so glad I go to Manor High!" The Pep Club sparked enthusiasm by helping to lead cheers.

"GO MUSTANGS". This was a new cheer that helped the spirits of the students, athletes, and faculty during pep rallies. The newly organized Pep Club was open to all students at the beginning of the year. At the pep rallies, the members held up signs supporting the team and backed up the cheerleaders with yells.

Journalism Class Staffs "Express"

Advisor Mr. Richard Cash and Editor Terri Pfeiffer were the driving forces behind the school paper. Above: They proofed the special Homecoming edition.

Journalism teacher Mr. Leroy Williams assisted Saundra Davis, Ivory Scales, and Theresa Prue with the basic skills of newspaper writing.

Laura Council, Bernae Britt, Terry Robinson, and Steve Early checked photos for the layout. Part of Journalism class was devoted to producing the paper.

After two years of editing the school paper, Senior Terri Pfeiffer made these observations:

Being the editor took lots of time and I had to learn many new skills. Planning and producing the paper were only part of the job. I had to learn to write and edit stories. My sense of humor, patience, and determination were greatly challenged.

The Journalism class helped to write the paper this year. There were more reporters, but the editing was still up to Mr. Cash and me.

Basically, the major problem has been getting student support. Subscription sales have improved and more students have shown an interest in the paper.

Marketing And Merchandising — DECA

Mr. Robert Copeland introduced Mrs. O.T. Hinton during DECA's annual Career Fair.

The Distributive Education Club of America was active not only in fundraising, but also in district and state competitions. Sponsors Diane Babilon and Robert Copeland worked with the chapter as it hosted the Portsmouth City Career Fair. Seminars were offered in various career areas from marketing to merchandising.

Fundraising was a requirement in DECA, and the selling of candy, calendars, and cookies helped to build up the treasury. A special project in February was to raise a donation of one hundred dollars for a national DECA project. This was to set up a room in Reston, Virginia for all members. The room was to be known as the Virginia Room because DECA began in Virginia.

Fashion Marketing And Merchandising

The Career Fair gave students from all over the city a chance to talk directly with people in the business world. Jeff Boone said, "It was really interesting".

Mr. Cook helped out the candy sale by making a purchase. Funds raised from this project went towards a national DECA house.

Las Fiestas, La Comida, Y El Burlarse

The Spanish Club met to plan for the making of pinatas and club activities. President — Wanda Ruffin with the help of Sponsor — Ms. Lucas led club members in a discussion.

The Spanish Club members planned an active year. The club elected officers early in the school year; they were Wanda Ruffin — President; Cynthia Cherry Vice-President; Lillie Lindsay — Treasurer; and Lisa Howard — Secretary. Bake sales were their main fund raising project. They had two goals for the school year, "We hope to attract more members to join and hopefully we will be able to take a trip at the end of the year with the funds we raise," said Lillie Lindsay.

Lillie Lindsay —Treasurer discussed the budget with club members.

Sponsor — Mrs. Flynn discussed the making of piñatas with Albert Moore, Cynthia Cherry, and Toni Brewer.

Girls Glee: Martha Nanney, Charlotte Whitaker, Lazonia Wallace, Susan Greene, Natalie Holloman.

Mens Glee: Seated: Jeff Grimes, Wayne Thomas, Derek Cary, Darryl Goodman. Standing: Billy Brown, David Kozoyed, Jerome Williams, Charles Saunders, Calvin Watts.

Mixed Chorus Visits Waters Junior High

After receiving a superior rating at the First Annual King's Dominion Chorus Festival last year, the Mixed Chorus had big plans and high hopes for the coming year. They went on their annual trip to Williamsburg at Christmas to visit patients at Eastern State Hospital and to see the Grand Illumination. Among the plans for the year were competing in festivals and auditioning for Regional and the A & A Show.

Songs (Cont'd)

Rehearsals for them started early during the year in order to perform for members of many communities, churches and clubs. They had the honor of performing at the Mayor's Breakfast, which was attended by city officials.

Right: Mrs. Heath, or Mama Heath as she was affectionately known to her students, celebrated a birthday this year that she will never forget. She was warmly greeted by Amazon Man, who delivered a singing telegram with a few added features. What was her reaction to the gift from the Mixed Chorus? "I was shocked, really shocked."

The Manor High Chorus was well represented at the District IV Regional Chorus. Acceptance in Regional Chorus was based upon performances in a range test, sight reading, and a prepared piece. The chorus was proud to have Timothy Cherry, a junior, receive the highest Bass I score in the district. Regional Chorus: Front Row: Denise Williams, Janet Cherry, Lisa Clinton, Anne Marie Glenn, Shire Coltrain, Kevin Wright. Row Two: Vonda Thomas, Sherita Knight, Shelton Davis. Row Three: Roxanne Long, Timothy Cherry. Row Four: Susan Midgett, Catherine Smith, Shaun Suddeth, Amy Harrison, Moses Smith. Row Five: Gia Terrell, Tamara Lumpkin, Keith Rodgers. Row Six: Jana Davenport, James Hamlin, Michael Gray. BackRow: Timothy Newsom.

Competition: Talking A Must

Sitting: Angela Williams, Lillie Lindsay, Alisa Tilley, Angela Mayo, Deirdre Hinton. Standing: Tamara Lumpkin, Mrs. Doris Copeland — Sponsor, Frances McDonald.

"The key to a good debater is not to crack under pressure and answer all questions with confidence," said Deirdre Hinton, an affirmative debater. Deirdre was among the seven novice debaters in the '82-'83 season. The topic chosen for the year was "Should the U.S. Significantly Curtail the Sale of Arms to Other Countries?" An affirmative debater would oppose the topic. The debaters competed with other schools in district competition. "Cross examination is the best part of a debate," said Angela Williams, a negative speaker, "you can make your opponent agree with what you have said." "The hardest part is controlling your anger" stated Angela Mayo after their competition with I.C. Norcom High School.

Speeches, Poetry, And Spelling

In District and school competition the Forensics Team participated in several competitive areas. Categories included poetry and prose reading, spelling, original oratory, and extemporaneous speaking.

School winners were: Yvonne Hardy, Celia Shook, Allen DeSouza, Shelton Davis, Raynelle Williams, Steven Thompson, Tami Bowen, and Brenda Wynn.

Deadlines, Delays . . . Proof And . . . Print

A new staff met last spring and over the summer in order to begin planning for the 1983 Mustang. Ads were sold and staff members began to list the type of coverage they wanted to print.

There was a general agreement to keep color in the book and to expand candid coverage. Angela Williams was named Editor-in-Chief and she began immediately to handle staff problems as well as handle the opening, closing and freshman sections.

The staff grew considerably and often overflowed into the hall outside of the yearbook office.

Kathleen Taylor assisted wherever she was needed and she became an expert at getting pictures identified. Editor-in-Chief Angela Williams checked the computer print out for correct spelling of names.

Frances McDonald edited the Senior Class section. She spent many hours organizing Senior statistics and trying to fit them onto a layout. Above: Fran counted the baby pictures.

Sixth period Yearbook Study was often hectic and it was a miracle how things got completed. Staff members Dana Brown, Marvette Warren, Keith Rogers, and Deirdre Hinton organized pictures, designed pages, wrote copy, and filled in whenever they were needed.

Workshops Inspire And Teach

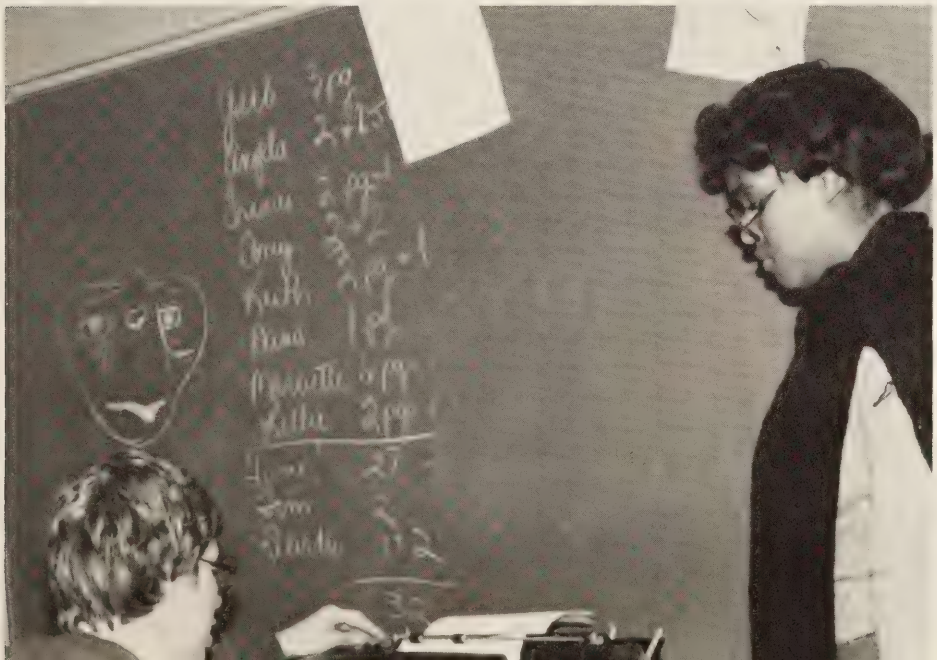
There were several workshops held during the Fall. Delmar Studios sponsored a one day seminar at Douglass Freeman High School in Richmond. Four staff members were able to attend. The Virginia High School League also ran their Annual Publication's workshop at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. Calvin Dawson, Tim Cherry, Amy Allison, and Marvette Warren were given detailed instruction in photography, layout design, and copy writing.

A day at Delmar's workshop in Richmond included an informal visit with Colonel Charles Savege Virginia's 1982 Journalism Teacher of the Year. Tim Cherry, Shelton Davis, Cyndi Mooney, and Amy Allison received points from Col. Savage and his faithful companion Tallulah.

Far Left: Staffer Lillie Lindsay readied pictures for the faculty section. She also had to compile all the vital information used in her section.
Left: Photography wasn't Amy Allison's only responsibility. She also edited the Sophomore section, and assisted with Academics and Honors.



Mrs. Susan Yearby, advisor, showed Editor-in-chief Angela Williams how to type on a 3C. All copy had to be set according to specific margins, fit to the layout design, and typed in triplicate.

Behind The Scenes In Room 130

The staff grew by leaps and bounds, but there was no carryover of experienced members except for the advisor.

The major concern was to expand picture coverage. Professional developing was used and the quality of the prints improved.

It wasn't easy writing a caption for every picture and often no one knew the person in the photo. A search would begin and usually the mystery was solved.

The final push began after exams. The last deadline had to be met, and the staff got used to Mrs. Yearby's tirades. February 18th was the magic date. The entire book was at the printers and the staff just had to wait the arrival of the proof sheets so that they could check for errors.

Harry Jenkins learned how to copy layout designs onto triple carbons. Keith Rogers became an expert at basketball and sought help from the team with writing captions for the pictures he used.

Editor-in-chief Angela Williams usually kept her cool, but occasionally, fits of hysteria would overcome her.

"It All Looks Great . . . But It's Not Done Yet!"

The look on Advisor Susan Yearby's face was one of contemplation. It often seemed as though the job would never get done!

Typist Angela Mayo was a tremendous asset to the staff. She was fast and accurate and always ready to help.

Staff Photographer Amy Allison became a familiar sight at most school events. Amy became interested in photography during her freshman year. She attended several workshops held in the state. These sessions enabled her to learn the basic skills of yearbook photography. Amy also edited the sophomore section of the book. She was a great help when deadlines came around and she participated in all phases of production, but her favorite assignment was to be behind the camera.

Action is the name of the game. Every season had its sports, and many students sought an outlet for excess energy as well as talent through the school's athletic program. A variety of sports including cross-country, soccer, and wrestling competed for a student's attention, along with the more traditional high school programs.

To win was important, and yet, the spirit of the competition and the pride in having done one's best, kept many students involved and dedicated through the losing seasons as well as the winning.

Above: The agony of an out was just part of the game. A cross-country runner, Sarah Wilson knew true exhaustion as she crossed the finish line. The control needed for wrestling demanded much pre-season training. Right: Each game brought new hope of victory as the team entered the field. Cager Kenny Jones went up for "two".

The 1982-83 football team showed promise of things to come. Under the leadership of the new Head Coach John Watts, the Mighty Mustangs set the tone for the opening of school by decisively beating the Wildcats of Great Bridge. This much needed victory help to strengthen school spirit and gave the team an opportunity to display new strategy for both the offense and defense.

Although several loses followed the first game, the team played better and they had regained the pride and discipline needed to compete in the Southeastern District.

The Homecoming game against I.C. Norcom was well fought, especially during the first half. Turning the Greyhounds' letdown to their advantage, the Mustangs scored early in the game and held their opponents scoreless until the last three minutes of the first half.

Building Stamina And "Pumping Iron"

Strong legs are an important part of any sport. Mike Gray worked out on the leg machine to build up muscles.

Squat presses were done by Mike Gray to build up leg muscles.

One would sometimes to be outweighted by the weights. Above James Anderson appeared to be smaller than the weights as he did squat presses.

Huron Winstead worked out to build up upper body strength.

At the close of the football season, many team members began a vigorous weight lifting program. Coach John Watts felt that this discipline was an essential part of preparing for any sport. Atheletes ran and did warm-ups before beginning a routine that led to lifting about 10,000 pounds a day.

Junior All-Tidewater defensive tackle Mike Wilkins said, "This program will really help us in the '83 season."

Fast Break Dominates Style

Above: Coach Cliff Black gave some new strategy during a time out. Right: Co-captain Mark Whitaker showed power and concentration as he targetted a shot.

Under the leadership of five year veterans Whitaker and Kenny Jones, the basketball team began its best season ever. Winning its first thirteen games, the team was listed by area coaches as number two in the district.

Whitaker held the key to the team's success, but depth on the bench and the strong starting lineup made the Mustangs the team to beat.

Wilson and arch-rival Norcom were stiff competion. A twenty-five foot jumper by Mark Whitaker turned the first meet with the Presidents around.

Coach Black sought nothing but the best from each player and encourage each man to develop his skills.

Below: Reginald Cuffee jumped to lift the ball in for two. Right: Keith Downs listened intently to Coach Black as he waited to return to the court.

Strength and skill was most needed when one was under the basketball goal. With several players around with the same objective, which was to get the rebound, one had to use strength and skill to get the ball. However many times on offense one would have to use strength and skill to score points. Above: Cary Johnson displayed his way of combing those qualities as he made his way to the basket.

That Championship Season

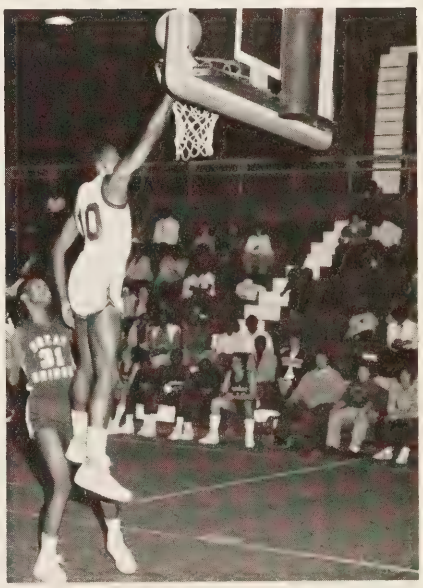
Mark Whitaker a key player in the Mustang success showed the style that earned him recognition all over Virginia.

The ability to stay calm, think logically, and react quickly when ones opponents have him surrounded, is an important quality in a player. This keeps him from committing turnovers. Below: Kenny Jones demonstrated his method of dealing with opponents.



A players leaping ability was needed on defense for getting rebounds as well as blocking shots. However, leaping was utilized on offense also. Mark Whitaker used his jumping ability to leap high above opponents.

Standing: Cary Johnson, James Kelly, Kenneth Jones, (co-captain), David Blackwell, Keith Downs, Tim Jones, Anthony Simmons, Kneeling: Mike Harris (trainer), Torrence Parrish, Reginald Cuffee, Mark Whitaker (co-captain), Jeff Dover, Edward Shields, Frank Rogers.

Players, as well as the fans anxiously awaited the opening tip off. This time of the game spotlighted the tall guys and their leaping ability.

Dedication And Drive . . . Coach Black

Coach Cliff Black has been at Manor since the school opened in 1972. The season to remember was this year's for him as well as his team.

Co-Captain Mark Whitaker said, "He's a good coach who sizes up a situation well. He also is a person as well as coach to team members.

Senior Keith Downs said, "His philosophy is the same as Skip Wilkins."

Coach Black's philosophy was for each team member to do his best every time. Each person had to try in practice as well as in games to do better than his best.

A school record for wins was the result of his time and effort using this ideal.

Learning To Hustle On The Court

Melissa Lindsay and Katie Moody fought for the rebound needed for that extra point.

Four Years On The Court

Katie Moody, the only four year player on the girls varsity basketball team really enjoyed her four years on the court. She enjoyed the excitement and the team work that was put forth in each game. "To perform your best in any sport not just basketball, requires a lot of practice." said Katie. Katie practiced about five hours a week during basketball season. She also ran track and played community ball and summer basketball to keep in shape.

Katie was a real asset to the team and she really put forth a lot of effort.

Aggressive Varsity Action

Wrestling: Mustang Style

The time that the Mustang wrestling team gave this year was hard and strenuous. From weight training to learning new techniques, every minute was spent with dedication. All through the season the members of the team were enthusiastic and conducted themselves as they should. Well coached and trained by head coach Charlie Thomas and his assistant Tony Colden the wrestlers worked hard to achieve victory and also learned to accept defeat. With future dedication equal to that which was displayed this season, the Mustang wrestling team will become a worthy opponent to any other team.

Manor Mustang Wrestlers for the 1983 season included: Standing: Jeff Grimes, Tommy Stice, Joe Crawford, Vernon Patterson, John Martir, Darryl Staton, Brian Tucker, Coach Tony Colden. Kneeling: Coach Charles Thomas, Calvin Pugh, Rufus Rountree, Anthony Brown, Ronald Edwards, Colia Doles, Greg Crawford.

"Mustangs Don't Take No Jive!"

Leaders of school spirit, the Varsity Cheerleaders were active throughout the school year. The squad became experts at stunts and yells. Top Row: Karen Forbes, Cheryl Clisby. Bottom Row: Vonda Thomas, Roxanne Long, Nicole Smith, Robin Holley, and Lynn Hatcher.

Who's the Boss? The Mustangs were, only these Mustangs kept a beat as the Varsity Cheerleaders performed a special skit during the Homecoming Pep Rally. Nicole, Robin, Sherry, Vonda, Lynn, Cheryl, Karen, and Roxanne made quite a starting line-up.

Sherry Bell joined the squad just before Homecoming. Her enthusiasm added to the squad. Above: Sherry put up a poster in the field house where the Mustangs won all home basketball games. Left: Rocky Long aimed for two points as the Varsity Cheerleaders outscored the Varsity Basketball team during a pep rally.

Going That Extra Mile . . .

1982 Southeastern District Cross Country Champions. Standing: Arnita Williams, Sarah Wilson, Juanita Williams. Kneeling: Denise Brown, Vikki Wright, Rhoda Johnson.

Rhoda Johnson and Denise Brown went through the two mike mark during a race at Churchland Park.

Juanita Williams was a special part of the Girls Cross Country team. She was the Portsmouth City Meet Champion, the Southeastern District Champion, and she also placed 4th in the Eastern Region.

A great deal of practice was required in the preparation of a race. One must have endurance and stamina to go the distance of a race. Juanita Williams, Sarah Wilson, and Vikki Wright showed the true spirit of the Mustangs by placing first, second, and third in a dual meet against Norcom.

Speed, Stamina, And Technique

A new coach, Ken Pfeifer, took the helm for the track team. An avid runner himself, Coach Pfeifer began practice in March. The team was relatively inexperienced and several of the veterans were plagued by injuries.

Tracey Walden, Mike Wilkins, Tony Brown, Steve Thompson, and R.D. Holland returned to give depth to the team.

Junior James Elam practiced leaving the starting block with speed and style. A race could be lost or won on a good start.

Performance was very important to those who specialized in specific events. Terry Robinson jumped for that extra inch.

Ronald Edwards showed the strain and concentration necessary in order to lift the shot put. Working out during the spring increased his thrust.

State Championship Team Rebuilds

The team that won the Virginia State Golf Championship was greatly reduced by the graduation of Roger Newsom, Bobby Bell, and Buddy Sarver. Coach Charles Brown sent out a call for replacements during February as he began the search for dedicated, disciplined team members.

Golf is an individualized sport and it requires great skill and concentration. It wasn't easy following a ball around the links in 40 degree weather. The high winds and even slight drizzle didn't matter to the golfers. They upheld the tradition that "it never rains on the golf course!"

Tim Newsom was the only returning player from last year's team. Coach Brown planned to rebuild the team around this Portsmouth City Champion.

Veterans Give Depth To Soccer

Soccer was a relatively new sport yet it has developed a following among both men and women. Coach Mike Hillinch emphasized five strategic areas: skill, discipline, speed, stamina, and team effort.

Returning players were Tommy Mauk — goalkeeper; Chris Coleson — halfback; George Jeffries — striker; Joe Cannon — fullback; John Roberts — fullback; Tony (D.C.) Smith — striker; and Mark Griffith — fullback.

Five year veteran Chris Coleson said, "I'm addicted to soccer. I find it exciting and I like the pace of the game." Chris first played soccer in Italy and he currently plays for the Eastern Mid-City team.

Chris Coleson, Tony Smith, and Tommy Mauk waited for official practice to begin on February tenth.

Senior members of the tennis team felt optimistic about how the season would go this year. Much improvement had been made since last year. Although there was no special preparation involved for seniors, they practiced their basic techniques to improve them. One advantage that was a major stepping stone for the seniors was experience. They were familiar with other players in the district and knew what the coach expected of them. By keeping a positive attitude and putting forth all the effort possible, the tennis team led by Harry Jenkins, Mark Whitaker, and Rodney Price was ready to compete.

Four Year Veteran Heads Team

Returning Softball Players: Shawn LaLonde, Sharon Evans, Coach Melodie Lubich, Julie Charlton, and Lori Edwards.

Coach Lubich went over some batting pointers with pitcher Julie Charlton.

Julie Charlton, a four year veteran, said about her softball career;

I started playing when I was eight years old, and I have enjoyed it ever since. I never thought I would pitch until I met professional pitcher Joan Joyce. She helped me and gave me a lot of advice.

Indoor Track Crosses State

The Girls Indoor Track Team spent the season traveling to meets all over the state.

In November they traveled to Menchville High School and to the College of William and Mary. At George Mason University, Vikki Wright set a new school record in the 500 meter dash.

Other competitions included the East Coast Invitational in Richmond, the Regional Meet in Newport News, and the State Meet at Virginia Military Institute in Staunton.

Can't Win For Losing

The Junior Varsity Football team had a very disappointing season. The biggest drawback was the overall inexperience of the team. The 8th, 9th, and 10th graders were not experienced and had a difficult time withstanding the stiff competition of other more experienced teams. The major weaknesses of the team were blocking and passing. Offensive passing improved however in the last two games. The strength of the team was running.

Coach Williams has high hopes for the J.V. team next year. The team should have many returning players. In preparation for next year he hopes that the team will be more familiar with defensive and offensive plays, but most of all he hopes they will be more familiar with his coaching tactics. Coach Williams is looking to David Carpenter, Ricky Griffy, Rodney Fate, Darryl Williams, Donald Ramsey, Kevin Macray, Tommy Stice, Mark O'Connor, Kenny Brown and Antoine Staton to initiate a spark in next year's line up.

The team got the spirit. Getting psyched up was part of the pre-game warm-up.

"I'm So Glad I Go To Manor High!"

They were in charge of getting all Junior Varsity athletes "psyched" up for competitions. They were the future cheerleaders of Manor. They were the Junior Varsity Cheerleaders.

These talented young ladies were not afraid to show their spirit. Sponsor Dianne Burroughs, co-captains Denise Williams, and Pennie Turner organized practices and kept the squad in shape. They gave up some of their summer vacation to come and practice for two hours each day. They also spent part of the summer at cheerleading camp held at Virginia Wesleyan College.

To some this may seem like an awful lot of practice, but to the cheerleaders all the hard work and practice was worth it. Stephanie Turner stated "I like being a cheerleader because it's fun and you feel like you're helping the team out by cheering for them," and co-captain Denise Williams felt "Being a cheerleader is a good way to meet new friends. Cheering is a thing that lets you yell and scream without getting into trouble."

"Mustangs Scalp the Braves" read the poster held by J.V. Cheerleaders Penny Turner and Denise Williams.

Kim Hartman, Susan Creecy, and Stephanie Turner knelt to greet the J.V. football team.

Anticipation showed on the faces of the cheerleaders as they waited their turn to cheer in the pep rally.

Almost everything the Coast Guard does, it does in small teams.

That means maybe for the first time in your life, what you do really matters. People are depending on you, listening to you. It's power. Responsibility. And if you do your job well, fast promotion. Because if you're good in a small group, everybody knows it.

What you do depends on your special skill. (In a small service like the Coast Guard, everyone learns a specialty—communications, electronics, aviation mechanics and so on.) You might save lives on a search and rescue patrol. Help control water pollution. Make studies of the ocean. Or any of the other peaceful, helpful things the Coast Guard does.

For more information, contact your local Coast Guard recruiter.

A Mustang's Spirit Was Hard To Break Because Of . . .

. . . doing for others. Operation Santa Claus gave Angela Mayo and Dana Brown a chance to share in Christmas joy.

. . . team unity. A Friday pep rally was a good place for the JV team to relax and share a laugh.

People are the real reason a "Mustang's spirit was hard to break." They came in all sizes and all shapes. They shared happiness and they sympathized in sorrow.

Manor's student body was created by drawing off students from other established area schools. It hasn't been easy melting these various groups together, but the teamwork of the band, chorus, clubs, and athletic teams has shown that Mustangs are a united group.

Our traditions are still developing. Our spirit is often shaped by victory, but the people who are Manor High are a special breed who come back after defeat and shine in victory.

. . . special teachers who had time to listen and talk. Dr. Gracie Saunders shared a laugh with Melissa Lindsay and Susan McNair.

. . . good times in class. Crystal Wolfe, Kenny Davis, and Natashi Reid shared a laugh around the word processor.

. . . helpful friends. Darryl Johnson and Harry Jenkins helped Allen DeSouza prepare for his senior portrait. Below: . . . enthusiasm. The JV cheerleaders often faced sparce crowds, but they were always ready to support the team.

. . . dedication. Tuba player Thomas Harris was only one of the Marching Mustangs who spent hours practicing to be the best band around.
